New Rioting Breaks Out In Caracas

Pro-Castro Gangs Battle Police, Hurl Molotov Cocktails

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Hundreds of leftists shouting pro-Castro slogans battled police in the heart of Caracas Sunday, renewing a wave of violent antigovernment demonstrations that began Friday.

Police said some of the agitators hurled Molotov cocktails.

The clashes were centered in Caracas' commercial district, where police and national guard units used firearms Saturday night to disperse gangs of rioters who had overturned autos, smashed windows and set bonfires in downtown streets. Two persons were killed and an estimated 100 injured in those disturbances.

The latest outbreaks prompted President Romulo Betancourt to call a special meeting of his Cabinet Monday. The Betancourt regime has run into growing leftist opposition since the Republican Democratic Union party pulled its members out of the coalition Cabinet two weeks ago and joined the opposition.

Police said youthful demonstrators began forming early Sunday afternoon in the commercial area, which usually is deserted during the weekend.

Later they paraded through the streets chanting slogans that hailed Cuba's Fidel Castro regime and denounced Betancourt.

The demonstrators overturned several autos. One belonged to the archbishop of Caracas, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jesus Quintero. They tried to set fire to the car but were driven off by police.

The weekend disturbances followed week-long demonstrations in Caracas last month in which five persons were killed and 20 injured. The government blamed the outbreak on leftist agitators.

Noted Lawyer, Author Dies

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Donald R. Richberg, lawyer and author who played a leading role in shaping some of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal measures of the 1930s, died Sunday. He was 79.

Richberg's wife found him dead at their home shortly after he complained of not feeling well. The cause of death was not determined immediately.

A Chicago lawyer early in his career, he became an expert in railway and labor problems. He was a coauthor of the Railway Labor Act passed by Congress in 1926.

Richberg also was a coauthor of the National Industrial Recovery Act of the depression days of 1932. Later he was general counsel and board chairman of the NRA set up under the act by Roosevelt, a job he gave up in 1935 to practice law in Washington.

The NRA had been declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

He has been with the law firm of Davies, Richberg, Tydings, Landa & Duff since then specializing in labor law. From 1949 to 1952 he was a lecturer at the University of Virginia Law School.

New Berlin Warning Given Allies By Reds

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany said Sunday it would not be bound by any agreed rules for the supplying of allied troops in West Berlin after Dec. 31. The official Communist daily Neues Deutschland did not elaborate in issuing the warning, in an unsigned editorial.

It left the implication the East German regime, which the Western Allies do not recognize, will then feel free to write its own rules—or perhaps even forbid the transport entirely.

Dixie Revolt Lacks Strength To Upset Kennedy Election

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—An Associated Press survey of Southern states shows no indication of a coalition of dissatisfied Democratic electors with sufficient strength to balk the election of John F. Kennedy as president in the Electoral College.

The hard core of resistance to Kennedy moving into the White House lies in Mississippi and Alabama. There is no indication that he will get any of Mississippi's eight electoral votes or six of the 11 in Alabama.

Those 14 men ran in the Nov. 8 general election as unpledged elector candidates and won. If they could get 32 more from Southern states to join them, they could throw the election into the House of Representatives.

More than 32 legally have an unpledged status. But the survey disclosed sentiment for Kennedy or outright commitments in his behalf throughout the South.

The independent electors in Mississippi and Alabama talk hopefully of Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas and some other state joining in an Electoral College bolt with the hope of providing a possible bargaining lever on civil rights.

Ernest Vandiver, Georgia's governor, dealt the hopes of revolt adherents a major blow when he announced the day before the election that Georgia's 12 electors would go all the way with Kennedy.

Vandiver heads the elector group. He, as titular head of the party in the state, handpicked the other 11 through the State Democratic Executive Committee he controls. Talk of a bolt died after the governor made his statement.

Arkansas and Louisiana electors haven't shown any enthusiasm for a walkout.

The closeness of the race between Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon gave rise to the speculation and possibilities.

Lana Turner Wed To Wealthy Rancher

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Actress Lana Turner went to the altar for the fifth time Sunday to marry wealthy rancher Fred May in quiet ceremonies attended only by her family.

Ike's Goals Commission Calls For Less Joblessness, Education Aid, More Arms

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals said Sunday the nation should reduce joblessness below 4 per cent, double its spending on education, and arm adequately "at whatever cost." The cost, it cautioned, might require a tax increase.

The bipartisan commission of 11 distinguished Americans presented to the White House a 15-point blueprint for national effort in the 1960s, as an Eisenhower legacy to the new administration.

The report urged billions in additional government spending on education, foreign aid, basic research, city redevelopment, and other programs. It said taxes probably cannot be reduced in the next decade "and may even have to be increased."

The report is an outgrowth of Eisenhower's declaration, in his State of the Union message of January 1959, that the country should define its national purposes. He created the commission last January, naming it to leaders in education, industry, labor, the law, and public welfare.

The chairman is Dr. Henry M. Wriston (president-emeritus) of Brown University and president of the American Assembly, an educational organization established at Columbia University by Eisenhower when he headed that institution.

The 30-page document called for these achievements in the 1960-70 decade:

Eradication of racial segregation and sharply lowered racial and religious barriers by 1970 in education, voting, housing and other fields.

A foreign policy which preserves and reinforces the United Nations while remaining ready to negotiate with the Soviet Union "on any reasonable basis."

A military policy of maintaining and strengthening the free world's military alliances—but declaring that nuclear disarmament "should be our ultimate goal."

Increased foreign aid, shared equitably by all the major free nations. America's contribution should be increased to $5 or $5.5 billion a year by 1965, it said, compared with an average of $3.4 billion in recent years.

Outright federal grants for education in states having low per capita income. In other states, federal funds should be matched by the states.

Tax revision, including more liberal depreciation allowances for industry and the closing of tax loopholes.

Holiday Auto Death Count Nearing 400

Rate Of Fatalities Rises; Fires Claim At Least 47 Lives

By The Associated Press

Traffic	393
Fires	47
Miscellaneous	102
Total	542

The traffic death rate rose with quickening speed Sunday night as the long Thanksgiving weekend approached an end.

Deaths mounted to 393 in traffic, 47 in fires and 102 in other kinds of accidents for a total of 542.

Fair, dry weather — often an invitation to fast driving — covered much of the nation. Rain or light snow in some areas added to the dangers of motoring. Fog drifted into Chicago and other sections of the Midwest.

The National Safety Council, whose records are the usual measuring stick for holiday weekend accidents, made no official estimate for the Thanksgiving weekend because traffic, the council said, is not as heavy as on other major holidays during the year. The safety group did estimate that 460 persons could die on the highways during a four-day weekend at this time of year.

The toll was running about even with the total during an Associated Press survey covering the 102 hours between 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, and midnight Sunday, Nov. 13. During that period The AP counted 433 traffic deaths, 69 fire deaths and 144 in other accidents for a total of 646.

During the 1959 Thanksgiving weekend there were 445 traffic deaths, 70 fire deaths and 135 in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 650.

The record number of deaths for a four-day holiday period is 884 over Christmas 1956. Traffic accidents that weekend killed 707.

Ghana Leader Criticizes U.S., Britain, France

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—President Kwame Nkrumah Sunday accused the United States, Britain and France of aiding and abetting Belgium in efforts to regain control over the Congo.

In a strongly worded message to U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, he also proposed establishment of an African high command to act either independently or be placed at United Nations disposal to "provide aid for any African country which may find itself in the circumstances which now prevail in the Congo."

Nkrumah complained bitterly in his telegram that according to his information, U. N. representatives in the Congo had admitted they could no longer provide protection for the Ghana police and embassy staff in Leopoldville.

Nkrumah fired off his message to Hammarskjold after talks with Nathaniel Welbeck, Ghana's charge d'affaires in the Congo, who was expelled by army strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu last week.

Nuclear NATO Boosts War Risk, Russ Say

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union declared anew Sunday that turning the North Atlantic Treaty Organization into an atomic power could easily plunge Europe into a destructive atomic war—and engulf the United States, too.

"The hopes of certain leaders of the Eisenhower administration that in case of nuclear war the atomic armaments of NATO member countries will make it possible to turn West Europe into the main battleground and thus diminish the dangers of a retaliatory blow on the United States itself are quite futile," Moscow radio said.

The broadcast, beamed to North America, charged that in the two months left of its life the Eisenhower government "evidently wants to lead the nation further along the road of the arms race and the brink-of-war policy."

Reception Contrast To Departure

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo president as he stepped from the (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu Belgian jet plane that brought him returned in triumph to his capital Sunday, wildly cheered by more than 100,000 Congolese.

Roar after roar rose from the crowd lining the two-lane highway from Ndjili Airport into the city as the president drove by in his open car, accompanied by Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko.

Pride and joy at the seating of the Kasavubu delegation by the U. N. General Assembly in New York triggered the greatest demonstration of popular enthusiasm in the capital since the independence celebrations last June.

It was a startling contrast to Kasavubu's departure for New York earlier this month, when only Western diplomats and a handful of Congolese came to see him off at the Congo River ferry.

Army leader Col. Joseph Mobutu, who had expressed some irritation at the president's decision to fly to New York, welcomed him back in style. Mobutu brought his commando battalion and the army band to the airport and placed himself in the front rank of scores of dignitaries who greeted the

Nixon Would Be Winner Under District System

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Good Government Society reported Sunday Richard M. Nixon would have been named president if the Nov. 8 election had been under a proposed congressional district system of choosing electors.

The nonprofit research organization, after a study of unofficial returns by counties and districts, said Republican Nixon would have received 282 electoral votes, 13 more than the required 269, and Democrat John F. Kennedy 250 under the district plan.

The five remaining electoral votes, the society figured, would have gone to unpledged electors in Mississippi. That state's other three electors would have gone to Kennedy because he carried three districts in that state.

New York's 45 electors, instead of all going to Kennedy, would have been divided 26 for Kennedy and 19 for Nixon under the district plan.

The district system of dividing a state's electoral vote is to be reoffered in the new Congress with a batch of other reform proposals prompted by the extremely close Kennedy-Nixon race. It was originally introduced by Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., and former Rep. Frederic R. Coudert, R-N.Y.

Under the district plan each state would pick its electors as it does senators and representatives, that is, two statewide and the rest by congressional districts. A voter would ballot for two at-large electors and one district elector. States with representatives at large would name as many electors at large, in addition to the regular two.

Under the present system a presidential candidate gets a state's entire electoral vote if he has a plurality of the popular votes. Barring unexpected reversals, Kennedy will wind up with 300 electoral votes to Nixon's 223, with 14 unpledged.

Illinois Canvass Board May Not Certify Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., said Sunday the Republican majority on the Illinois Canvass Board may refuse to certify Sen. John F. Kennedy as the winner in the presidential race in that state.

GOP officials have talked hopefully of overturning the Illinois results, which gave Kennedy the state's 27 electoral votes by a popular ballot margin of 8,849 out of almost 4 1/2 million cast.

The Canvass Board meets Monday, Douglas said, but there is talk in Chicago that it may adjourn without taking any action on the election results.

The board has four Republicans and one Democrat. Douglas said three of the Republicans are "flame duck" officials—defeated for re-election, the governor, attorney general and state auditor.

Douglas made his comment in answer to questions on the ABC-TV program, "Issues and Answers."

Rankin Rites Set For Today

TUPELO, Miss. (UPI)—John Elliott Rankin, one of the most turbulent political figures in modern congressional history, will be buried Monday in the soil of his beloved Mississippi.

Rankin, a fiery crusader for white supremacy, rural electrification and veterans' benefits and an arch foe of communism during 32 years as a Mississippi representative, died Saturday night of a heart attack. Death came at the age of 78 following a lengthy illness.

Mississippi's First District sent Rankin to Congress in 1920 and re-elected him 15 times. He was finally defeated by Rep. Thomas Abernethy in 1952 after their districts were combined and the state's congressional delegation reduced.

Confers With Brother Bob And Johnson

President-Elect Will Name Budget Chief This Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy put in a busy Sabbath Sunday going to church, visiting his wife and son and mapping plans for a new White House administration.

Much of the afternoon was set aside for a session on long distance telephone lines. Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said Kennedy is continuing to use the phone to talk to people about Cabinet appointments—but not for talking to prospective appointees.

Salinger did say once more that the Massachusetts senator expects to act this week on the appointment of a budget director who will be up against the immediate problem of becoming acquainted with the new Eisenhower administration budget and reworking it along lines the Democrats desire.

The telephone calls were in advance of two major conferences, with another visit to the hospital sandwiched between.

One was with Kennedy's brother, Robert, who directed his presidential campaign. Robert would like to have a spot in the government—speculation has centered on his becoming attorney general—but the Kennedys are aware that a wave of criticism might result.

Johnson Invited To Dinner

Then Sunday night, Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and his family were invited to dinner at the Kennedy home.

Brother Bob, his wife Ethel and four of their children drove up to the Kennedy home shortly after 6 p.m. and left with the senator nearly half an hour later for the hospital.

Kennedy said there wasn't any discussion in the interval of whether his brother would have an official spot in the new administration, "but I'll be talking to him this week."

Robert and his family had five packages wrapped in white and silver striped and fancy ribbons—gifts for the president-elect's wife and infant son.

The two brothers hadn't met since Nov. 11.

Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and his family were invited to have dinner at the Kennedy home later in the evening.

This was to give Kennedy and Johnson another chance to discuss plans for the administration that takes over Jan. 20 as well as Johnson's trip to Europe last week.

Kennedy, Daughter Attend Mass

Johnson was chairman of the U. S. delegation at a Paris meeting of parliamentary leaders of NATO countries. He also conferred with President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain.

Kennedy attended Mass at Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church near his Georgetown home. His daughter, Caroline, 3 years old Sunday, went along and had quite a romp. She climbed over pews and lay down on a kneeling rail.

Afterward, the senator drove to Georgetown University Hospital to visit his wife and John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., who was born early Friday morning. Salinger said the baby is doing fine.

Mrs. Kennedy is expected to remain in the hospital at least 10 days, then go to Palm Beach, Fla.

Starting Monday afternoon, Kennedy will be operating from an office in the Capitol building.

Pravda Lashes Out At Vatican For Subversion

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda has charged the Vatican with direct participation in subversive activities against the Congo Republic and worldwide support of "American imperialism."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said Sunday the Roman Catholic Church is playing the same role in Cuba, Argentina, Formosa, South Viet Nam and Indonesia.

It described the Vatican as the most bitter enemy of "the national liberation movement of colonial peoples."

"Ruling circles of the Catholic Church," it said, "have always been malicious enemies of the peoples of Asia and Africa." (The attack was issued on the eve of a session of the U. N. General Assembly in New York to consider Soviet Premier Khrushchev's demand that all colonial peoples be given complete independence forthwith. Khrushchev called for this action in a speech before the assembly Sept. 23. The Russians have been disappointed in hopes for support from the Asian-African group. The group is offering a milder resolution of its own.)

Pravda declared 40 per cent of the income of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation for Propagation of the Faith has been spent in Africa "to stop development of the national liberation movement."

At the same time it was made clear that the Soviet Union is stepping up its own propaganda activities in Africa.

Director I. Patekin of the Institute for African Studies at the Academy of Sciences said the institute will soon open new sections concentrating on African culture, literature and languages.

One was with Kennedy's brother, Robert, who directed his presidential campaign. Robert would like to have a spot in the government—speculation has centered on his becoming attorney general—but the Kennedys are aware that a wave of criticism might result.

Then Sunday night, Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and his family were invited to dinner at the Kennedy home.

Brother Bob, his wife Ethel and four of their children drove up to the Kennedy home shortly after 6 p.m. and left with the senator nearly half an hour later for the hospital.

Kennedy said there wasn't any discussion in the interval of whether his brother would have an official spot in the new administration, "but I'll be talking to him this week."

Robert and his family had five packages wrapped in white and silver striped and fancy ribbons—gifts for the president-elect's wife and infant son.

The two brothers hadn't met since Nov. 11.

Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and his family were invited to have dinner at the Kennedy home later in the evening.

This was to give Kennedy and Johnson another chance to discuss plans for the administration that takes over Jan. 20 as well as Johnson's trip to Europe last week.

Kennedy, daughter attend Mass. Johnson was chairman of the U.S. delegation at a Paris meeting of parliamentary leaders of NATO countries. He also conferred with President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain.

Kennedy attended Mass at Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church near his Georgetown home. His daughter, Caroline, 3 years old Sunday, went along and had quite a romp. She climbed over pews and lay down on a kneeling rail.

Afterward, the senator drove to Georgetown University Hospital to visit his wife and John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr. who was born early Friday morning. Salinger said the baby is doing fine.

Mrs. Kennedy is expected to remain in the hospital at least 10 days, then go to Palm Beach, Fla.

Starting Monday afternoon, Kennedy will be operating from an office in the Capitol building.

Soviet, Asian-African Fight Shapes Up In U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union is at odds with the 46-nation Asian-African group over proposals for a U. N. declaration against colonialism.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin has told members of the powerful group the proposal it has drawn up on the subject is unacceptable to his delegation.

He is pressing for changes to add a note of extra urgency to the Asian-African proposal and make it more like the one that Soviet Premier Khrushchev put forward in the General Assembly Sept. 23.

But the group seems unlikely to agree to all the changes he wants. So the 99-nation assembly may witness the rare spectacle of a floor fight between the Russians

Tawes Advised River Compact Suit To Be Filed

BALTIMORE (AP) — An attorney representing opponents of the Potomac River Compact advised Gov. Tawes Sunday that a suit will be filed to test the validity of a referendum on the agreement.

Baltimore attorney Hyman A. Pressman, who represents watermen in Charles and St. Marys counties, said in a telegram to Tawes:

"Since Attorney General (C. Ferdinand) Sybert refuses to give an official opinion on the validity of the advertising of the Potomac River Compact, this is to advise that I shall promptly file suit on behalf of the watermen."

Pressman also reiterated his plea that the governor withhold a proclamation making the agreement law until after the court renders a decision.

The new Potomac River Compact with Virginia, which would replace an agreement canceled by Maryland in 1957, was ratified in a state-wide referendum Nov. 3.

Immediately after it was approved, Pressman said the compact was not advertised properly and promised to test the validity of the agreement in court.

Later Pressman asked for a formal opinion on the matter from Sybert. But Sybert said the courts and not his office should rule on the issue.

Last Saturday, Pressman charged Sybert with shirking his responsibility as attorney general. In a telegram to Sybert, the attorney called the attorney general's position "ridiculous."

Pressman told Sybert, "The great importance of the matter makes it all the more compelling that you render the opinion which has been asked of you..."

"Numerous important and difficult decisions have been made by previous attorneys general without fear of being found wrong by the courts."

Official Declares China Believes In Coexistence

LONDON (AP) — Red China's foreign minister was quoted Sunday as saying his country believes in peaceful coexistence and does not seek to conquer the capitalist world by force of arms.

Marshal Chen Yi was quoted as terming "pure fabrication" charges that China wants to extend communism by war.

An interview with Chen Yi took up two pages of the tabloid Sunday Graphic. Its author is Stuart Gelder, a British journalist whom the Graphic said had a long interview with Chen Yi in Peiping last month and reported that Western beliefs in China's belligerent foreign policy are "mistaken."

But he added: "The Chinese believe that while imperialism and capitalism exist, the danger of war remains."

Soviet and Chinese leaders have been reported in deadlock at the Communist summit meeting in Moscow over differences on the inevitability of war with the West.

What the Chinese have been saying is that capitalism and communism cannot coexist and that communism must hammer capitalism down. The Soviet stand is that communism can triumph over capitalism without conflict.

Gelder quoted Chen Yi as saying: "You know that China was very backward before the (Communists took power), and that

Castro's Red Advisers Stay Inside Havana

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime appears to be keeping its steadily increasing force of Communist advisers and technicians in this capital city, or well-hidden elsewhere.

It is believed there are several hundred men from behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains in Cuba, with many more on the way. But Havana seems to be their one big base.

A tour of four of Cuba's five provinces disclosed few public appearances by Soviet, East European or Red Chinese guests of this Communist-oriented government.

Russians, Czechs, Chinese and East Germans are seen regularly in Havana. Many of them spend most of their time in and around luxury hotels formerly American-owned. But they are still seen so rarely in the countryside that their presence is noted and commented upon by curious Cubans.

Residents of Santiago, Cuba's second city, report they have seen only an occasional Soviet visitor aside from crewmen of the Soviet tankers and freighters which now call there regularly.

Soviet sailors are allowed ashore, but Santiago merchants say they seem to have little money. They go sight-seeing and window-shop.

"Sometimes a pair of them will order one Coca-Cola and two glasses," a Santiago storekeeper said.

Caroline Attends Church With Dad On Third Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy walked to church with his daughter Caroline on her third birthday Sunday. He carried her rag doll on the walk—and found his hands much fuller when they reached the church.

A crowd of about 200 well-wishers—some calling, "Happy birthday, Caroline!"—tagged along on the three-block stroll in warm, sunny weather.

Like any other father with an extremely lively youngster, Kennedy had a full-time job managing the little girl during the Mass at Holy Trinity church in Georgetown.

Pretty as a picture in a pink bonnet, matching coat, pale blue dress and white knitted leggings, blonde Caroline wasn't still a minute during the 45-minute service.

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Twenty-eight U.S. governors Sunday wound up a visit to Argentina and Brazil, generally convinced, as Georgia's Gov. S. Ernest Vandiver put it, that "we must strengthen ties with these friendly people."

Gov. Stephen L. R. McNichols of Colorado, chairman of a 15-day tour which combined business and sightseeing, suggested that President-elect John F. Kennedy invite the presidents and governors of Argentina, Brazil and other Latin-American republics to visit the United States.

"There is a magnificent foundation of friendship," he said, "and such visits could chart the course toward greatly improved understandings, cooperation and progress as well as fortify democracy against the assaults of communism."

McNichols, a Democrat, said Latin America is ready to surge forward and "is eagerly awaiting the Kennedy administration."

"The people understand the change in government does not mean everybody is getting a plush seat on cloud nine," he said, "but that we all face tough problems in many fields and need to work hard together."

Laos Clashes Are Reported

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Scattered skirmishes in central and southern Laos were reported Sunday as this nation awaited a fateful answer from King Savang Vatthana.

The king has given no hint so far of his attitude toward a projected coalition government, made up of rightist rebels, pro-Communist Pathet Lao and neutralist elements, to end Laos' six-year-old civil war.

The proposal—prepared by neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma and his half-brother Prince Souphanouvong, head of the Pathet Lao—was sent to the king Thursday.

Souvanna told a mass rally in Vientiane Sunday that if negotiations failed it would mean full-scale civil war between the Pathet Lao and the rightist regime of rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Most Westerners here see little hope Phoumi will agree to serve in the same government as the Pathet Lao, but with the Laoians' traditional penchant for compromise, there is still hope some solution may be worked out.

and the Asians and Africans. The group will meet Monday morning so that the many sponsors of its proposed declaration can sign up and the proposal can be sent to the U. N. Secretariat to be circulated to all delegations.

The Assembly then will convene to take up the Khrushchev declaration. Zorin will speak on it. Then the rival Asian-African declaration is to be introduced formally, probably by Indonesian Delegate Sukardjo Wirjopranoto.

Zorin's last-minute suggestions for changes in the latter proposal, completed only Friday night, will be dealt with at the group meeting. He has asked that the Asian-African proposal say independence shall be granted to all colonies "without delay"—somewhat as the Soviet proposal says it shall be granted "forthwith." The Asian-African declaration now says only that "immediate steps shall be taken" to transfer powers to colonial peoples.

Plane Crash Near Annapolis Kills Four, Bishop Dies Ups State Holiday Accident Toll To Nine At Washington After Stroke

By The Associated Press
Four persons were killed in a plane crash near Annapolis Sunday, increasing the Maryland accidental death toll for the Thanksgiving holiday period to nine.

The four men were passengers in a single-engine, four-seater Cessna plane which crashed while attempting a takeoff from Lee Airport, located between Edgewater and Riva in Anne Arundel County.

A 63-year-old pedestrian was fatally injured on Maryland's Eastern Shore Saturday night. His was the 472nd traffic death so far this year in the state and the fourth of the holiday weekend.

In addition 4-year-old Joyce Tiggle of Baltimore died Saturday of burns suffered Friday at her home and Samuel Berger, 53, also of Baltimore, died Friday night of injuries suffered in an auto accident Nov. 20.

The pedestrian was identified as Edward Gumbly, Stockton, who was killed as he walked north on U. S. 13, just south of Pocomoke City in Worcester County.

Gumbly was struck by a car operated by Sam White, 46, of Parkersley, Va. Police said White was traveling north on the highway, apparently at a normal rate of speed, and he struck Gumbly while passing another vehicle.

Gumbly was pronounced dead by Dr. Robert Lamar, county medical examiner.

The plane crash victims were identified as Kenneth W. Lee, 38, Edgewater; William C. Ward, 33, Mayo; William E. Miller, 43, Edgewater; and Pfc. Charles W. Player, 25, attached to a Nike base at Davidsonville, and from Petersburg, Va.

Anne Arundel County police said about 1 a. m. they received reports of a loud noise which residents of the Edgewater area believed to be a plane crashing.

A search was initiated and the wreckage of the plane was located about 6:30 a. m. in a ravine on the farm of Eugene M. Childs, about 900 feet from the end of the runway of the airport.

Dr. Elmer G. Linhardt, county medical examiner, pronounced the victims dead at the scene.

Agents of the Civil Aeronautics Board began an investigation of the cause of the accident.

Other holiday traffic deaths included:

Robert Wendling, 23, Baltimore, killed Saturday in a head-on collision in Baltimore County.

Phillip E. Fink, 38, Alexandria, Va., killed Thursday in a Prince Georges County collision.

Anastios Kourniotis, 74, Bel Air, killed while trying to cross a street in Bel Air.

21 Md. Judgeships To Be Filled In 1961

BALTIMORE (AP)—At least 21 Maryland judgeships are to be filled next year, but Gov. Tawes so far hasn't hinted who's in line for any of them.

Referenda approved by Maryland voters Nov. 8 created two new seats on the Court of Appeals, added five judges to county circuit courts and established an 11-judge Municipal Court for Baltimore.

In addition, three members of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore—Judge John T. Tucker, Judge S. Ralph Warnken and Judge E. Paul Mason—will reach 70, the mandatory retirement age, during 1961.

Two of the new circuit court judgeships will be in Prince Georges County, one in Montgomery County, one in Kent and another in the Fourth Judicial Circuit which includes Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

There has been speculation in some Democratic circles that Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert is in line for one of the seats on the Court of Appeals with Secretary of State Thomas B. Finan tapped as Sybert's successor.

The so-called "fixed stars" are actually in motion — they just look stationary against the movement of various planets.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, 83, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Washington, died Saturday at Providence Hospital, apparently from the effects of a stroke suffered on Thanksgiving Day.

Bishop McNamara had been suffering from a heart condition for several years. He had had a light stroke late in 1958.

The late Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, and the other auxiliary bishop, the Most Rev. Philip M. Hannan, had been called to the bedside of Bishop McNamara as his condition deteriorated.

The prelate, a priest for more than 57 years, was known to thousands of Catholics and members of other faiths for his lifetime of religious and community work in Washington and Maryland.

His dedication to the priesthood brought him high rank and many honors in the Catholic church.

Pope Pius XII in 1952, appointed him an assistant to the pontifical throne in recognition of his work.

Some years earlier, in 1929, he was named vicar general of the archdiocese of Baltimore, second only to the archbishop, when the archdiocese included Washington.

Archbishop O'Boyle's first act after being consecrated archbishop of Washington on Jan. 14, 1948, was to reappoint Bishop McNamara as vicar general of the Washington see.

Bishop McNamara rose to bishopric rank on Dec. 16, 1927, when the late Pope Pius XI appointed him auxiliary bishop of Baltimore. He was the first Catholic pastor in Washington to be made a bishop in more than 140 years when the Baltimore appointment was made.

At the time of his death Bishop McNamara still was pastor of St. Gabriel's church, a position he had held since 1920.

Plane Crash Near Annapolis Kills Four, Bishop Dies Ups State Holiday Accident Toll To Nine At Washington After Stroke

By The Associated Press
Four persons were killed in a plane crash near Annapolis Sunday, increasing the Maryland accidental death toll for the Thanksgiving holiday period to nine.

The four men were passengers in a single-engine, four-seater Cessna plane which crashed while attempting a takeoff from Lee Airport, located between Edgewater and Riva in Anne Arundel County.

A 63-year-old pedestrian was fatally injured on Maryland's

Eastern Shore Saturday night. His was the 42nd traffic death so far this year in the state and the fourth of the holiday weekend.

In addition 4-year-old Joyce Tiggle of Baltimore died Saturday of burns suffered Friday at her home and Samuel Berger, 53, also of Baltimore, died Friday night of injuries suffered in an auto accident Nov. 20.

The pedestrian was identified as Edward Gunby, Stockton, who was killed as he walked north on U. S. 13, just south of Pocomoke City in Worcester County.

Gunby was struck by a car operated by Sam White, 46, of Parkersley, Va. Police said White was traveling north on the highway, apparently at a normal rate of speed, and he struck Gunby while passing another vehicle.

Gunby was pronounced dead by Dr. Robert Lamar, county medical examiner.

The plane crash victims were identified as Kenneth W. Lee, 38, Edgewater; William C. Ward, 33, Mayo; William E. Miller, 43, Edgewater; and Pfc. Charles W. Player, 25, attached to a Nike base at Davidsonville, and from Petersburg, Va.

Anne Arundel County police said about 1 a. m. they received reports of a loud noise which residents of the Edgewater area believed to be a plane crashing.

A search was initiated and the wreckage of the plane was located about 6:30 a. m. in a ravine on the farm of Eugene M. Childs, about 900 feet from the end of the runway of the airport.

Dr. Elmer G. Linhardt, county medical examiner, pronounced the victims dead at the scene.

Agents of the Civil Aeronautics Board began an investigation of the cause of the accident.

Other holiday traffic deaths included:

Robert Wendling, 23, Baltimore, killed Saturday in a head-on collision in Baltimore County.

Phillip E. Fink, 38, Alexandria, Va., killed Thursday in a Prince Georges County collision.

Anastasio Kourniotis, 74, Bel Air, killed while trying to cross a street in Bel Air.

1,600 Farmers To Share In Soil Bank Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 1,600 Maryland farmers will share in payments of $1,443,603 earmarked for the state this year under the Department of Agriculture's soil conservation program.

Officials reported Friday that 85,115 acres of Maryland farmland is covered by soil bank contracts in effect. The payments next year will be approximately equal to this year's, officials said, but will decline sharply thereafter.

Authority to place new land under the program has ended, and the last of the contracts was signed last fall.

The contracts range in length from five to 10 years, and all will be ended by 1970 under the current program.

Lip Service Can Be A Beauty Bonus

Based on the theory that fashion is most feminine and youthful, the modern cosmetics manufacturers are introducing young-look lipsticks, and it's a dollar well spent. Your mouth, your most flexible feature, is as pretty as you make it.

Turning toward the new season these velvety lip colorings not only have stay-on and color consistency, but softening, moistening, and protective ingredients. A lovely pink-red shade is chosen as a foil for prints, pastels and stark black.

Don't hesitate to experiment a bit with new colors and new tints, in lipstick and color-keyed makeup. There's only one rule to define your best color — the color that does the most for your skin, eyes, hair.

Find the right color for you via my scientific colorscope in "Your Color Type," my fact-filled pamphlet. Only a dime and a stamped return envelope sent to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this paper, will bring you your copy of "Your Color Type" to help you keep up with the latest in color.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When my wife gets ready for bed she greases herself up like she's preparing to swim the English channel. Then she rolls her hair up in aluminum gadgets and fastens them with hairpins. One night she'll put my eye out.

When I complained to her she said, "I have a choice—my hair can look good either at night or the next day." She claims if she doesn't pin her hair up at night it is unmanageable. About the grease—she says her skin is dry. You're a woman Ann, tell me, is all this jazz necessary?—SAM

DEAR SAM: No. There are non-sticky, non-gooey creams on the market and your wife should inquire about them. Also, no woman has to go to bed looking like Univa. If her hair is difficult to manage, she should get a permanent. If she MUST wear pins and a hairnet, there are attractive pins available, decorated with daisies and rosebuds, and cute hairnets made of metallic thread and trimmed with satin bows. Give her five dollars today and tell her to go shopping.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is now 19 years old. She was born a little too soon after our marriage, but my husband and I moved immediately to another city and no one thought anything about it.

Our daughter became interested in a job that required her to present her birth certificate. She wrote to the city hall of the town where she was born and they sent her a photostated copy of the original document. She has let us know she was disappointed to learn she's been celebrating her birthday in December although she really was born in September. Now that she suspects something, what shall we say?—

TROUBLED PARENTS: DEAR TROUBLED: Be realistic. If she has seen a copy of the original certificate, she's more than suspicious—she's dead sure. Since you're trapped, admit the truth and then drop it. If you've been good parents all these years, what happened before she was born can't really make any difference.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a well known professional man passed away. He had many friends and I'm sure there were hundreds of thank-you notes to write after the funeral. Instead of sending cards, the family sent out mimeographed letters which started "Dear Friend." Even the signature was mimeographed.

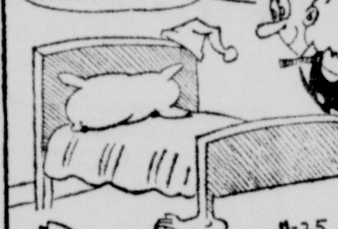

I was shocked by the impersonal treatment. A few people I work with argued it was all right since he was prominent and the list of those who remembered him was probably a long one. What is your opinion?—WONDERING

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Justice Williams calls herself "the best scrounger in the world."

"You can't be a second-best scrounger and run the program I'm running on $20,000 a year on the French Riviera," the recreation expert said in an interview.

Miss Williams is head of the United Service Organizations (USO) in Nice, France, the home port of the U.S. Sixth Fleet—an arm of the Navy to which 50,000 and in a hurry, as per the request. They honeymooned against the law.

Among things she's scrounged during the last four years: 1,000 books for the USO library, free entertainment for parties, art objects to dress up the recreation center, food for the snack bar, volunteer instructors for language classes, emergency quarters for stranded tourists.

Miss Williams, 45, is a recreation major from St. Olaf's College and the University of Minnesota. For the last 20 years she's been helping Americans abroad to fill leisure time. She served in England and Japan with the Red Cross and for a time worked for the Special Service unit of the Army.

It helps to be a combination of Cupid's helper, amateur realtor, she said, "to locate a small-money lender, and hand-decent two-bedroom apartment holder to head a USO even in that rent is somewhat of a hard-peace time.

Not long ago, Miss Williams ship on the typical sailor."

1,600 Farmers To Share In Soil Bank Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 1,600 Maryland farmers will share in payments of $1,443,603 earmarked for the state this year under the Department of Agriculture's soil conservation program.

Officials reported Friday that 85,115 acres of Maryland farmland is covered by soil bank contracts in effect. The payments next year will approximately equal this year's, officials said, but will decline sharply thereafter.

Authority to place new land under the program has ended, and the last of the contracts was signed last fall.

The contracts range in length from five to 10 years, and all will be ended by 1970 under the current program.

Helps Flood Victims

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Communist Chinese Red Cross has offered the equivalent of $12,000 to Indian flood victims, the Indian government announced Sunday.

The announcement was noteworthy because of the strained relations between India and Communist China concerning their mutual border.

A little brush practice will make you an accomplished lip artist.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Lip Service Can Be A Beauty Bonus

Based on the theory that fashion is most feminine and youthful, most cosmetics manufacturers are introducing young-look lipsticks, and it's a dollar well spent. Your mouth, your most flexible feature, is as pretty as you make it.

Turning toward the new season these velvety lip colorings not only have stay-on and color consistency, but softening, moistening, and protective ingredients. A lovely pink-red shade is chosen as a foil for prints, pastels and stark black.

Don't hesitate to experiment a bit with new colors and new tints, in lipstick and color-keyed makeup. There's only one rule to define your best color — the color that does the most for your skin, eyes, hair.

Find the right color for you via my scientific colorscope in "Your Color Type," my fact-filled pamphlet. Only a dime and a stamped return envelope sent to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this paper, will bring you your copy of "Your Color Type." To help you keep up with the latest in color.

Just as colors have changed, so has the way lipstick is applied. The modern way is with a lip brush. Years ago in the days of the "Cupid's Bow," make-up men used their fingers to apply the rouge to the movie star's lips. There was great concern over sanitation laws. One day make-up artist Perc Westmore solved it all by using a Chinese marking brush to apply the lip rouge. Thus the lip brush was born, and all women who want to be clever make-up artists have been using them ever since.

With a little practice you can get a clean curve conforming to the most flattering shape for you. All you need is a longhaired, red sable lipstick brush, a magnifying mirror, a steady hand, patience, and the following suggestions from our Powers Models. Have your mouth dry of all moisture and cosmetic-free. Steady your hand by bracing the tip of your little finger against your chin. Some like the extra support of their elbow on the dressing table. To relax your lips, say "cheese." Load your brush with lipstick. Draw the outline of your lips starting from one corner of the upper lip and work toward center; switch to other corner and continue until lines meet. In same fashion outline lower lip. Fill in the color with flat of the brush.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When my wife gets ready for bed she greases herself up like she's preparing to swim the English channel. Then she rolls her hair up in aluminum gadgets and fastens them with hairpins. One night she'll put my eye out.

When I complained to her she said, "I have a choice—my hair can look good either at night or the next day." She claims if she doesn't pin her hair up at night it is unmanageable. About the grease—she says her skin is dry. You're a woman Ann, tell me, is all this jazz necessary?—SAM

DEAR SAM: No. There are non-sticky, non-goopy creams on the market and your wife should inquire about them. Also, no woman has to go to bed looking like Univac. If her hair is difficult to manage, she should get a permanent. If she MUST wear pins and a hairnet, there are attractive pins available, decorated with daisies and rosebuds, and cute hairnets made of metallic thread and trimmed with satin bows. Give her five dollars today and tell her to go shopping.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is now 19 years old. She was born a little too soon after our marriage, but my husband and I moved immediately to another city and no one thought anything about it.

Our daughter became interested in a job that required her to present her birth certificate. She wrote to the city hall of the town where she was born and they sent her a photostated copy of the original document. She has let us know she was disappointed to learn she's been celebrating her birthday in December although she really was born in September. Now that she suspects something, what shall we say?—TROUBLED PARENTS

DEAR TROUBLED: Be realistic. If she has seen a copy of the original certificate, she's more than suspicious—she's dead sure. Since you're trapped, admit the truth and then drop it. If you've been good parents all these years, what happened before she was born can't really make any difference.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a well known professional man passed away. He had many friends and I'm sure there were hundreds of thank-you notes to write after the funeral. Instead of sending cards, the family sent out mimeographed letters which started "Dear Friend." Even the signature was mimeographed.

I was shocked by the impersonal treatment. A few people I work with argued it was all right since he was prominent and the list of those who remembered him was probably a long one. What is your opinion?—WONDERING

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Justine Williams calls herself "the best scrounger in the world."

"You can't be a second-best scrounger and run the program I'm running on $20,000 a year on the French Riviera," the recreation expert said in an interview.

Miss Williams is head of the United Service Organizations (USO) in Nice, France, the home port of the U.S. Sixth Fleet—an arm of the Navy to which 50,000 sailors are attached.

Among things she's scrounged during the last four years: 1,000 books for the USO library, free curbs, strictly on face value — and the cash out of Miss Williams' pocket. She told of helping a female tourist who appeared at the USO in a weepy state.

The woman told me she hadn't had a bite of food in two days," Miss Williams said. "She said she lost her money and was too embarrassed to ask fellow tourists for a loan. She had an honest face and I loaned her some money. It was returned."

Miss Williams said probably the hardest chore is finding housing for the dependents of American sailors in Nice.

"You've got to turn over of Cupid's helper, amateur realtor stones," she said, "to locate a small-money lender, and hand-decent two-bedroom apartment holder to head a USO even in for $150 a month — and even that rent is somewhat of a hardship."

Not long ago, Miss Williams ship on the typical sailor.

National Goals And The 'New Frontier'

A study proposed by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union Message of 1959 is now being published after much delay. This is the report of the President's Commission on National Goals.

The aim of the study, as proposed, was to produce long-range plans for the nation's social and economic well-being. These "guidelines" were to extend "certainly five, possibly ten years" ahead.

The goals study had been suggested to the President by Charles H. Percy, Bell & Howell president, who was later to shape the Republican platform at the 1960 convention. After analysis by White House staff members, it was accepted in a somewhat watered-down form.

Staff work for the Commission was directed by William P. Bundy, former Central Intelligence Agency official. He recruited a group of authorities on such subjects as foreign policy, defense, science, and the like. Each of these, after consulting an advisory panel, wrote one chapter in a 16-chapter background book. The Commission's own shorter report is based on the background work.

The Advertising Council is conducting a nationwide campaign urging Americans to read the Commission report. It will be published in book form by Prentice-Hall on December 12.

The timing of the release of the report and of its publication was intentional, the aim being to keep it out of politics. Both Senator Kennedy and Vice President Nixon, however, were kept informed of the progress of the Commission.

The report is expected to chart a path toward broad national objectives. Its mandate from the President was to outline "programs for the next decade and longer." Nevertheless, while it is not expected to stress governmental action to achieve these national objectives, it should be specific enough to be useful to a new administration headed by a President who throughout the campaign urged the necessity of "getting America moving" toward new national goals — or, in his own words, "new frontiers."

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Role Of Richard Nixon

Richard Nixon came so close to being elected President that his failure produces two opinions:

1. That he will inevitably be his party's candidate in 1964 and that in the meantime he will lead his party not only nominally and titularly but fully.

2. That he could have won this election hands down had he campaigned with punch and vigor, attacking Kennedy on all fronts, holding the Republicans, including the Conservatives, fighting together in formation. Those who hold the latter view insist that Nixon had displayed personal and political weaknesses against which the enemy can well prepare in advance. For instance, they maintain that his sudden, unexpected and unnecessary peace pact with Nelson Rockefeller was an enormous political blunder. Nelson Rockefeller, whatever he may mean to others, has a tiny, splinter following in the Republican Party and Nixon lost more by his association with Rockefeller than he gained.

Of course, he is being criticized for the so-called silly debates on television. As no candidate will probably ever again reduce himself to this particular stupidity, one passes it by as an error of management.

On the other hand, Nixon's failure to batter down Kennedy's rather loose statements forces on one the belief that Nixon either agreed with Kennedy or dared not take him on. At any rate, Nixon went through the campaign without disclosing his program to redeem the country from the errors of the Eisenhower Administration or the broad but impractical campaignings of the Democrats.

One other argument is set forth by the Nixon opponents in the Republican Party: it rarely occurs that a candidate once defeated succeeds in another election. It did happen to Grover Cleveland. He was defeated for a second term, ran again and was elected. However, William Jennings Bryan, Thomas E. Dewey and Adlai Stevenson, having been once defeated, tried again and failed again. However, none of these candidates gained as many votes as Nixon did. His defeat by a hair may make him the exception.

Meanwhile leadership in the Republican Party will not go begging. In the Senate, Styles Bridges and Barry Goldwater will lead their party with some protest from the left from Jacob Javits and Clifford Case. It is doubtful if the so-called Liberal Republicans can influence enough strength in the Senate to matter much.

From outside, Nelson Rockefeller will be a trouble-some seeker for the leadership role. Rockefeller will set up a public relations device to keep his name constantly to the fore. To remain in the picture, however, he must be re-elected as Governor of New York State in 1962. Should Rockefeller be defeated in 1962, his political fortunes will be nil.

Nixon's problem now is to get a suitable forum for himself. The President always has a forum: Senator Goldwater receives attention wherever he goes. But a defeated candidate, even a former Vice President, does not command attention unless what he says is startlingly different.

Therefore, Richard Nixon's problem is to find a suitable place in American life from which he can attract attention to himself if he is to be a candidate in 1964, as he undoubtedly expects to be. He may head a university or a foundation or some other public body. It is not likely that he will enter into a law partnership as that could involve him in matters which would limit his availability in 1964. He might run for Governor of California but that would be risky, as should he not be elected, his Presidential aspirations would be at an end.

Our system is not thrifty about talent. We waste our men of talent. Richard Nixon has, during the past 14 years, had an enormous and valuable experience which, in almost any other country, would still be available. In Great Britain, he would be a Member of Parliament, sitting at the head of the opposition, holding such a position as Hugh Gaitskell does at the present time. He would be consulted by those in power if the national interest required it.

Here we have three ex-Presidents, Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower, for whom there is no formal use in our government: we have three former candidates, Dewey, Stevenson and Nixon, who have no place at all. There ought to be a place for these men in the national life. Perhaps the place is a permanent seat in the Senate.

Tables Turned: Now U. S. Needs 'Foreign Aid'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The United States has served notice on Western European governments that, if the stability of the dollar is to be maintained, a start must be made immediately toward a turning of the tide of gold now flowing out of this country.

It shocked the Western German government, for instance, to hear such blunt talk and grumpily it led to a few inspired news reports criticizing the U. S. Secretary of the Treasury on the ground that he hadn't paved the way for such a startling change. For the last year and a half, however, Mr. Anderson has been telling the diplomats the realistic truth and in the last few months his campaign for a shift in policy has been thwarted not only by some of our own State Department officials down the line but by some of the American embassy personnel abroad. They simply couldn't accept the fact that the great United States would have to ask West Germany and other European countries for any help. But, as has often been said, pride goes before a fall and the time had come to face up to the true state of affairs and let the world know that the dollar will be in jeopardy unless cooperation is forthcoming from Western European governments.

The Anderson mission was criticized in Bonn as ill-prepared or ill-advised, according to news dispatches. The West German government, of course, didn't like the bad news they heard. Chancellor Adenauer, with an election ahead of him, was naturally cautious about agreeing at once to some of the requests of the American government. What seems a minus now, however, will certainly become a long-range plus as everybody in Bonn comes to realize in due time that this is not a partisan question in the United States and that the Kennedy Administration will have no choice but to adopt the Eisenhower proposals.

Indeed, if Congress should become aroused, as is likely once all the facts are laid on the table, the next thing the businessmen of Germany will be reading about is a series of laws of correction.

There is no ideal ensemble for all types of cold weather. Comfort in winter depends upon the temperature, humidity, wind, sun, and activity.

The light ski suit, for example, may be perfect for skiing, especially when the individual is active and warmed by the sun. But it will never do for the man or woman who must walk down Michigan Avenue on a cold, damp,

These might include protectionist tariff measures, a partial embargo on tourist travel, and some further restrictions on duty-free purchases by American travelers which will be far more damaging to German interests than the relatively small amount of financial cooperation which the American government has just requested with respect to a sharing of payments for the upkeep of the U. S. troops stationed in West Germany.

The significant news is not the failure to reach an agreement in the first conference at Bonn but in the tactful statement of Ludwig Erhard, the economic chief in the Adenauer Cabinet, who frankly told The Associated Press that the meeting with Mr. Anderson had been of a constructive nature. Certainly the seriousness of the American dollar position has at last been impressed on the West German government and it is also understood clearly by the British and French governments.

President Eisenhower, realizing the urgency of the whole problem, didn't feel that things could wait for a new administration here to take hold. Incidentally, Secretary Anderson met for two hours at Paris with Vice President-elect Johnson and Chairman Fulbright, Democrat, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who were in Paris for a NATO Parliamentary convention. They were given all the information about the conference at Bonn and what lies

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

THREE EXES — Come 12:01 p. m., January 20, the United States will have three living ex-presidents—Herbert Hoover, Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower. We haven't researched it, but our memory tells us this is the first time we will have had that many in this century, at least . . . We can't help but think back to the current wisecrack when Kennedy won the Presidential nomination — that if he won, he'd ultimately become the "youngest elder statesman in history." . . . In the realm of what might have been, there's a lot of Monday morning quarterbacking about the mistakes Nixon made in his campaign. Perhaps the greatest was accepting the nomination in Chicago . . . And it must be recalled that Nixon's personal fortunes and the course of the United States came within a heartbeat of major, unpredictable change three times during Eisenhower's years in the White House.

On instances too numerous to mention, both major political parties have renominated defeated Presidential candidates, although none has succeeded in winning an election in recent times.

There is nothing in the political record, however, to support a conclusion that Nixon is through. He will be the titular leader of his party in the four years of the Kennedy administration. And he is young.

If Nixon can keep himself in the limelight, there is no reason he cannot win his party's nomination in 1964 from the two men who now loom as his principal rivals — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

WHAT NOW? — Inevitably, the question arises as to the future of Richard M. Nixon, the defeated GOP Presidential candidate. The days immediately after an election it is normal to count the loser out of political life permanently. However, history does not bear this out.

On instances too numerous to mention, both major political parties have renominated defeated Presidential candidates, although none has succeeded in winning an election in recent times.

Eisenhower Administration Leaving Kennedy A Religious 'Hot Potato'

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower Administration is leaving several "hot potatoes" behind for the Kennedy administration, one of the hottest being a probe of Protestant groups for violating their tax-exempt status by engaging in politics.

Tax agents are already working on one explosive case involving the National Association of Evangelicals, an organization of conservative Protestant churches, not affiliated with the National Council of Churches, which represents 40 small but vigorous denominations with 2,250,000 members.

Two field agents from the Chicago regional office of Internal Revenue paid a formal call on November 21 to Dr. George L. Ford, executive secretary of the association, at its national headquarters in Wheaton, Ill.

The call was not unexpected, since it followed informal consultations with Internal Revenue Service officials in Chicago and Washington. The law prohibits Internal Revenue Service Officials from talking about the case of any specific taxpayer or organization but in Washington, Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, secretary for public affairs of the Evangelical Association, was quick to confirm that his group is under investigation.

Specific reason is the distribution during the campaign of a pamphlet entitled "A Roman Catholic President—How Free from Church Control?" It was a reprint of an article by the association's executive secretary, Dr. Ford, which appeared in the N.A.E.'s official magazine "United Evangelical Action."

Wealthy Contributors Hit

The article was published several months before the Los Angeles convention which nominated Senator Kennedy, and made no mention of his name. During the campaign, copies were included in a mailing of material to ministers of member denominations, who in turn were invited to order reprints. About 100,000 copies with a total value of $8,000 were ordered, according to Dr. Taylor.

He said some other material included in a Reformation Day mailing had been questioned, but that Dr. Ford's tract seems to be the major document under question.

The tax law cited by the revenue agents is section 501(c)(3) which limits tax exemption to corporations organized exclusively for religious, charitable, and educational purposes "no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements) any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office."

The law is quite clear, according to the tax agents. They believe the N.A.E. tract, as well as any other document questioning the fitness of a Catholic candidate for the Presidency distributed during an election campaign, constitutes political intervention.

Internal Revenue officials, queried in Washington, acknowledged that a number of Protestant organizations are being questioned but said any penalties would be mild, consisting of loss of tax exemption for just the year 1960. Since church organizations usually operate at a deficit, there will be no "profit" to tax, even if they are compelled to file a tax return. Actually the penalty will chiefly hit wealthy individual contributors who will not be allowed to take a deduction for gifts to these church groups in 1960.

Puerto Rico Is Exempt

However, the principle at stake is an important one and Dr. Taylor makes it clear that the National Association of Evangelicals will go to court if its tax exemption is revoked for 1960.

"We will carry the case to the Supreme Court, if necessary," he said, "because we think it involves freedom of speech and freedom of religion."

"The Catholic Bishops of Puerto Rico have just demonstrated in their campaign against Gov. Munoz Marin," he said, "much more effectively than did we, the kind of pressure to which the Bishops can, if they wish, subject any Catholic who holds public office."

The Puerto Rican Bishops, incidentally, will not be affected by any tax action taken against American Protestants for participation in the 1960 campaign. For Puerto Rico collects its own income taxes and its law contains no restriction against political activity by a tax-exempt organization.

Whatever action is taken against Protestants in the United States, however, will obviously establish a precedent for Catholic or Jewish bodies as well. Thus it is difficult to see how under American law, as now written, the Catholic Bishops in the United States could openly intervene in an election by ordering their people to vote for or against a given candidate, without giving up their tax exemption. The Catholic clergy, incidentally, is not without misgivings about any precedents established with respect to Protestants.

Kennedy Is Embarrassed

It's known that Sen. Kennedy would just as soon bury the hatchet with Protestant groups which criticized his church during the campaign. Very few attacked him personally and most have sent him their best wishes and have told him they will pray for him in the difficult days ahead. Revoking their tax exemption now would smack of reprisal and would reopen the wounds.

However, the Eisenhower administration may put the President-elect in a position where he can't let bygones be bygones. For if the Internal Revenue Service lets its field offices go ahead and deny tax exemption to picketing Protestant groups, it will be difficult for the new administration to revoke such a ruling.

And if the National Association of Evangelicals goes to court, it will be the new Attorney General appointed by a Catholic President who will have to prepare the government's case and fight the court battle against the Protestants.

So it will look as if the new administration is seeking reprisals. If similar action were to be taken against the Puerto Rican Bishops, Kennedy would be in a less embarrassing position. But the Puerto Rican law is different, and this will be hard to explain to people who will be emotionally aroused by what they may regard as religious persecution.

No hotter "potato" will be left on Jack Kennedy's desk.

They watch the grown-ups—Negroes and a few whites—move into the club. Until sundown, the British flag flies over the town of West End. When it comes down, the natives play.

The woman at the door takes a dollar from every patron. She wears rhinestone earrings the size of golf balls. The Blue Marlin is a big oblong cinderblock with a service bar on the left, 50 tables around a dance floor, and a band on a stage up front. The band hits everything hard and loud. The waitresses balance the big trays over their heads and they walk calypso style between the tables.

West Indian Negroes have a sweet bland pride. They love the sea and they love each other. They permit white guests to visit their club, but they do not want integrated entertainment. They speak a cadenced rhythm, like the lyrics of a song. Their names too are colorful: Onward Jones, a cab driver; Poppy Skeeter, a self-appointed official who will meet you, marry you, send you to jail, sell liquor to you and bury you.

There is Jimmy Bowles, as dark as a well-kept secret: Cue Arlington McQueen, who is simply too much, and a girl named Constant Bennett. The West Indian women have the most erect carriage I have seen. They also have a gentle way that was not taught in the local Sunday school. I asked my room maid what her name is.

"Pot," she said. She spelled it Pat. "Pot Cunningham, but they call me Pot for shortness."

At the club, the people drink and dance. They like warm Norwegian beer and they dance warm. Sometimes, they dispense with feet. The men glisten, the women perspire, the boy shaking the maracas tosses his face toward the ceiling as he swings the sandy potato mashers. At midnight, Sidney Garvey, the owner, asks everyone to be quiet. The show is about to go on.

Garvey's father is the best Negro limbo dancer on the island. Tonight he is missing. A man in a loincloth comes on the dance floor and does a fire dance. He blows a benzine breath and a broad blast of ruddy flame hits the palm fronds on the beams. They sing. The man crouches and wheels and snaps his hips and blows more fire.

It suggests an old medicine man on his way to the happy hunting ground. He dies in convulsive ecstasy and the people shout and slap their thighs and laugh.

A dark girl in fringe comes out with a sullen expression. She begins an aboriginal shiver and in a few minutes, she is in a happy coma, shivering everywhere. The little band plays faster and louder and the waitresses bring more drinks and the people begin to swing and moan in their seats.

The owner's girl comes on and does a native dance that is native to every port in the world. It is, shall we say, basic. The customers chant with the music and some of the young men at ringside laugh so hard at the girl's antics they slide to the floor.

At 1:30 a.m. the show is over. The band plays "Danny Boy" with a beat. Ned Moss shakes his head sadly. "Danny Boy," he shouts above the din. "I'll bet there isn't a dry eye in the house." ## How To Dress For Fall And Winter Weather?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

There is no ideal ensemble for all types of cold weather. Comfort in winter depends upon the temperature, humidity, wind, sun, and activity.

The light ski suit, for example, may be perfect for skiing, especially when the individual is active and warmed by the sun. But it will never do for the man or woman who must walk down Michigan Avenue on a cold, damp, cloudy, windy day in January.

There is no trick to staying warm when active and covered from head to foot with heavy, fur-lined clothing. But a person cannot work or perform satisfactorily when the outer garments are too bulky. In addition, he gets wet if it rains and the cloth may be so permeable to air he gets chilled to the bones.

This creates a problem because all textiles, with the exception of leather and coated materials, are permeable to water. Coated fabrics repel moisture but prevent the escape of water vapor (perspiration) from the body. As a result, the individual becomes wet on the inside and just as chilled as though soaked by rain.

The newer winter fabrics are coming closer to perfection. Weight, bulk, and stiffness are minimized to allow freedom of activity. Closely woven double layer outer garments offer adequate wind and water resistance. Thereafter, the clothing depends upon the amount of exercise.

National Goals And The 'New Frontier'

A study proposed by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union Message of 1959 is now being published after much delay. This is the report of the President's Commission on National Goals.

The aim of the study, as proposed, was to produce long-range plans for the nation's social and economic well-being. These "guidelines" were to extend "certainly five, possibly ten years" ahead.

The goals study had been suggested to the President by Charles H. Percy, Bell & Howell president, who was later to shape the Republican platform at the 1960 convention. After analysis by White House staff members, it was accepted in a somewhat watered-down form.

Staff work for the Commission was directed by William P. Bundy, former Central Intelligence Agency official. He recruited a group of authorities on such subjects as foreign policy, defense, science, and the like. Each of these, after consulting an advisory panel, wrote one chapter in a 16-chapter background book. The Commission's own shorter report is based on the background work.

The Advertising Council is conducting a nationwide campaign urging Americans to read the Commission report. It will be published in book form by Prentice-Hall on December 12.

The timing of the release of the report and of its publication was intentional, the aim being to keep it out of politics. Both Senator Kennedy and Vice President Nixon, however, were kept informed of the progress of the Commission.

The report is expected to chart a path toward broad national objectives. Its mandate from the President was to outline "programs for the next decade and longer." Nevertheless, while it is not expected to stress governmental action to achieve these national objectives, it should be specific enough to be useful to a new administration headed by a President who throughout the campaign urged the necessity of "getting America moving" toward new national goals — or, in his own words, "new frontiers."

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Role Of Richard Nixon

Richard Nixon came so close to being elected President that his failure produces two opinions:

1. That he will inevitably be his party's candidate in 1964 and that in the meantime he will lead his party not only nominally and titularly but fully.

2. That he could have won this election hands down had he campaigned with punch and vigor, attacking Kennedy on all fronts, holding the Republicans, including the Conservatives, fighting together in formation.

Those who hold the latter view insist that Nixon had displayed personal and political weaknesses against which the enemy can well prepare in advance. For instance, they maintain that his sudden, unexpected and unnecessary peace pact with Nelson Rockefeller was an enormous political blunder. Nelson Rockefeller, whatever he may mean to others, has a tiny, splinter following in the Republican Party and Nixon lost more by his association with Rockefeller than he gained.

Of course, he is being criticized for the so-called silly debates on television. As no candidate will probably ever again reduce himself to this particular stupidity, one passes it by as an error of management.

On the other hand, Nixon's failure to batter down Kennedy's rather loose statements forces on one the belief that Nixon either agreed with Kennedy or dared not take him on. At any rate, Nixon went through the campaign without disclosing his program to redeem the country from the errors of the Eisenhower Administration or the broad but impractical campaignings of the Democrats.

One other argument is set forth by the Nixon opponents in the Republican Party: it rarely occurs that a candidate once defeated succeeds in another election. It did happen to Grover Cleveland. He was defeated for a second term, ran again and was elected. However, William Jennings Bryan, Thomas E. Dewey and Adlai Stevenson, having been once defeated, tried again and failed again. However, none of these candidates gained as many votes as Nixon did. His defeat by a hair may make him the exception.

Meanwhile leadership in the Republican Party will not go begging. In the Senate, Styles Bridges and Barry Goldwater will lead their party with some protest from the left from Jacob Javits and Clifford Case. It is doubtful if the so-called Liberal Republicans can influence enough strength in the Senate to matter much.

From outside, Nelson Rockefeller will be a trouble-some seeker for the leadership role. Rockefeller will set up a public relations device to keep his name constantly to the fore. To remain in the picture, however, he must be re-elected as Governor of New York State in 1962. Should Rockefeller be defeated in 1962, his political fortunes will be nil.

Nixon's problem now is to get a suitable forum for himself. The President always has a forum; the Governor of New York State has a forum; Senator Goldwater receives attention wherever he goes. But a defeated candidate, even a former Vice President, does not command attention unless what he says is startlingly significant.

Therefore, Richard Nixon's problem is to find a suitable place in American life from which he can attract attention to himself if he is to be a candidate in 1964, as he undoubtedly expects to be. He may head a university or a foundation or some other public body. It is not likely that he will enter into a law partnership as that could involve him in matters which would limit his availability in 1964. He might run for Governor of California but that would be risky, as should he not be elected, his Presidential aspirations would be at an end.

Our system is not thrifty about talent. We waste our men of talent. Richard Nixon has, during the past 14 years, had an enormous and valuable experience which, in almost any other country, would still be available. In Great Britain, he would be a Member of Parliament, sitting at the head of the opposition, holding such a position as Hugh Gaitskell does at the present time. He would be consulted by those in power if the national interest required it.

Here we have three ex-Presidents, Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower, for whom there is no formal use in our government; we have three former candidates, Dewey, Stevenson and Nixon, who have no place at all. There ought to be a place for these men in the national life. Perhaps the place is a permanent seat in the Senate.

Tables Turned: Now U.S. Needs 'Foreign Aid'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The United States has served notice on Western European governments that, if the stability of the dollar is to be maintained, a start must be made immediately toward a turning of the tide of gold now flowing out of this country.

It shocked the Western German government, for instance, to hear such blunt talk and promptly it led to a few inspired news reports criticizing the U. S. Secretary of the Treasury on the ground that he hadn't paved the way for such a startling change. For the last year and a half, however, Mr. Anderson has been telling the diplomats the realistic truth and in the last few months his campaign for a shift in policy has been thwarted not only by some of our own State Department officials down the line but by some of the American embassy personnel abroad. They simply couldn't accept the fact that the great United States would have to ask West Germany and other European countries for any help. But, as has often been said, pride goes before a fall and the time had come to face up to the true state of affairs and let the world know that the dollar will be in jeopardy unless cooperation is forthcoming from Western European governments.

The Anderson mission was criticized in Bonn as ill-prepared or ill-advised, according to news dispatches. The West German government, of course, didn't like the bad news they heard. Chancellor Adenauer, with an election ahead of him, was naturally cautious about agreeing at once to some of the requests of the American government. What seems a minus now, however, will certainly become a long-range plus as everybody in Bonn comes to realize in due time that this is not a partisan question in the United States and that the Kennedy Administration will have no choice but to adopt the Eisenhower proposals.

Indeed, if Congress should become aroused, as is likely once all the facts are laid on the table, the next thing the businessmen of Germany will be reading about is a series of laws of correction. The Anderson mission was criticized in Bonn as ill-prepared or ill-advised, according to news dispatches. The West German government, of course, didn't like the bad news they heard. The significant news is not the failure to reach an agreement in the first conference at Bonn but in the tactical statement of Ludwig Erhard, the economic chief in the Adenauer Cabinet, who frankly told The Associated Press that the meeting with Mr. Anderson had been of a constructive nature. Certainly the seriousness of the American dollar position has at last been impressed on the West German government and it is also understood clearly by the British and French governments.

President Eisenhower, realizing the urgency of the whole problem, didn't feel that things could wait for a new administration here to take hold. Incidentally, Secretary Anderson met for two hours at Paris with Vice President-elect Johnson and Chairman Fulbright, Democrat, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who were in Paris for a NATO Parliamentary convention. They were given all the information about the conference at Bonn and what lies

THREE EXES — Come 12:01 p. m., January 20, the United States will have three living ex-presidents—Herbert Hoover, Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower. We haven't researched it, but our memory tells us this is the first time we will have had that many in this century, at least. . . . We can't help but think back to the current wisecrack when Kennedy won the Presidential nomination — that if he won, he'd ultimately become the "youngest elder statesman in history." . . . In the realm of what might have been, there's a lot of Monday morning quarterbacking about the mistakes Nixon made in his campaign. Perhaps the greatest was accepting the nomination in Chicago. . . . And it must be recalled that Nixon's personal fortunes and the course of the United States came within a heartbeat of major, unpredictable change three times during Eisenhower's years in the White House.

WHAT NOW? — Inevitably, the question arises as to the future of Richard M. Nixon, the defeated GOP Presidential candidate. The days immediately after an election it is normal to count the loser out of political life permanently. However, history does not bear this out.

On instances too numerous to mention, both major political parties have renominated defeated Presidential candidates, although none has succeeded in winning an election in recent times.

There is nothing in the political record, however, to support a conclusion that Nixon is through. He will be the titular leader of his party in the four years of the Kennedy administration. And he is young.

If Nixon can keep himself in the limelight, there is no reason he cannot win his party's nomination in 1964 from the two men who now loom as his principal rivals — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Try And Stop Me

Early in Robert Taylor's motion picture career, the budding star decided he was being underpaid and sought a raise from the Great Mogul of the MGM studio, the late Louis B. Mayer, who could weep a bucket of tears at will. He sat Taylor down and told him, "Bob, I have two lovely daughters but no son. If I DID have a son—and I would have liked him to be as handsome, brilliant, and talented as you—I would have told him, 'Son, you are now working for a great studio that one day will make you a great, great star. Don't make the mistake, my son, of demanding a raise now.'"

Taylor was in something of a daze when he found himself back in the anteroom. "Well," demanded his agent, "did you get a raise?" "No," admitted Taylor, "but I got a father."

Eisenhower Administration Leaving Kennedy A Religious 'Hot Potato'

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON —The Eisenhower Administration is leaving several "hot potatoes" behind for the Kennedy administration, one of the hottest being a probe of Protestant groups for violating their tax-exempt status by engaging in politics.

Tax agents are already working on one explosive case involving the National Association of Evangelicals, an organization of conservative Protestant churches, not affiliated with the National Council of Churches, which represents 40 small but vigorous denominations with 2,250,000 members.

Two field agents from the Chicago regional office of Internal Revenue paid a formal call on November 21 to Dr. George L. Ford, executive secretary of the association, at its national headquarters in Wheaton, Ill.

The call was not unexpected, since it followed informal consultations with Internal Revenue Service officials in Chicago and Washington. The law prohibits Internal Revenue Service officials from talking about the case of any specific taxpayer or organization, but in Washington, Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, secretary for public affairs of the Evangelical Association, was quick to confirm that his group is under investigation.

Specific reason is the distribution during the campaign of a pamphlet entitled "A Roman Catholic President—How Free from Church Control?" It was a reprint of an article by the association's executive secretary, Dr. Ford, which appeared in the N.A.E.'s official magazine "United Evangelical Action."

Wealthy Contributors Hit

The article was published several months before the Los Angeles convention which nominated Senator Kennedy, and made no mention of his name. During the campaign, copies were included in a mailing of material to ministers of member denominations, who in turn were invited to order reprints. About 100,000 copies with a total value of $8,000 were ordered, according to Dr. Taylor.

He said some other material included in a Reformation Day mailing had been questioned, but that Dr. Ford's tract seems to be the major document under question.

The tax law cited by the revenue agents is section 501(c)(3) which limits tax exemption to corporations organized exclusively for religious, charitable, and educational purposes "no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements) any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office."

The law is quite clear, according to the tax agents. They believe the N.A.E. tract, as well as any other document questioning the fitness of a Catholic candidate for the Presidency distributed during an election campaign, constitutes political intervention.

Internal Revenue officials, queried in Washington, acknowledged that a number of Protestant organizations are being questioned but said any penalties would be mild, consisting of loss of tax exemption for just the year 1960. Since church organizations usually operate at a deficit, there will be no "profit" to tax, even if they are compelled to file a tax return. Actually the penalty will chiefly hit wealthy individual contributors who will not be allowed to take a deduction for gifts to these church groups in 1960.

Puerto Rico Is Exempt

However, the principle at stake is an important one and Dr. Taylor makes it clear that the National Association of Evangelicals will go to court if its tax exemption is revoked for 1960.

"We will carry the case to the Supreme Court, if necessary," he said, "because we think it involves freedom of speech and freedom of religion."

GRAND BAHAMAS—The stars are too big. They hang, unblinking, in a tropical sky that is never black. Soldier crabs walk the lime roads like dignified drunks. Strawberry groupers tread the warm sea lazily, staying in the night shadows of the sloop at anchor. Four little boys dance for coins in front of the Blue Marlin Club.

A boyz then glares down at the boys. They have the true rhythm that God reserved to Negroes who love music. The bare feet shiver, the knees knock, the dark faces split in snowy grins. They watch the grown-ups—Negroes and a few whites—move into the club. Until sundown, the British flag flies over the town of West End. When it comes down, the natives play.

The men glisten, the women perspire, the boy shaking the maracas tosses his face toward the ceiling as he swings the sandy potato mashers. At midnight, Sidney Garvey, the owner, asks everyone to be quiet. The show is about to go on.

"The Catholic Bishops of Puerto Rico have just demonstrated in their campaign against Gov. Munoz Marin," he said, "much more effectively than did we, the kind of pressure to which the Bishops can, if they wish, subject any Catholic who holds public office."

The Puerto Rican Bishops, incidentally, will not be affected by any tax action taken against American Protestants for participation in the 1960 campaign. For Puerto Rico collects its own income taxes and its law contains no restriction against political activity by a tax-exempt organization.

Whatever action is taken against Protestants in the United States, however, will obviously establish a precedent for Catholic or Jewish bodies as well. Thus it is difficult to see how under American law, as now written, the Catholic Bishops in the United States could openly intervene in an election by ordering their people to vote for or against a given candidate, without giving up their tax exemption. The Catholic clergy, incidentally, is not without misgivings about any precedents established with respect to Protestants.

Kennedy Is Embarrassed

It's known that Sen. Kennedy would just as soon bury the hatchet with Protestant groups which criticized his church during the campaign. Very few attacked him personally and most have sent him their best wishes and have told him they will pray for him in the difficult days ahead. Revoking their tax exemption now would smack of reprisal and would reopen the wounds.

However, the Eisenhower administration may put the President-elect in a position where he can't let bygones be bygones. For if the Internal Revenue Service lets its field offices go ahead and deny tax exemption to politicking Protestant groups, it will be difficult for the new administration to revoke such a ruling.

And if the National Association of Evangelicals goes to court, it will be the new Attorney General appointed by a Catholic President who will have to prepare the government's case and fight the court battle against the Protestants.

So it will look as if the new administration is seeking reprisals. If similar action were to be taken against the Puerto Rican Bishops, Kennedy would be in a less embarrassing position. But the Puerto Rican law is different, and this will be hard to explain to people who will be emotionally aroused by what they may regard as religious persecution.

No hotter "potato" will be left on Jack Kennedy's desk.

San Francisco Forty Niners Upset Baltimore, 30-22

41-Yard Pass, Lateral Play Decide Game

West Coast Team Sews Up Decision In Final Minutes

BALTIMORE (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers upset the National Football League defending champion Baltimore Colts 30-22 Sunday on a 41-yard touchdown pass and lateral play in the last 1½ minutes.

Bobby Waters, third-string quarterback from Presbyterian, pressed into service because of injuries, and end Dee Mackey, from East Texas State, pulled the see-saw scoring game out of the fire.

Waters, in the game only because quarterbacks John Brodie and Y. A. Tittle were knocked groggy, passed 20 yards to Clyde Corner, and promptly hit Mackey with another heave on the Colt 25. As Mackey was being tackled by Milt Davis and Bob Boyd, he lateraled to R. C. Owens who trotted into the end zone.

Baltimore Leads 22-20

The Colts, just five minutes earlier, appeared to have squeezed out a tough victory when Big Daddy Lipscomb tackled C. R. Roberts in the 49er end zone for a safety and a 22-20 Baltimore lead.

The loss shaved Baltimore's lead in the Western Conference to a half game over the Chicago Bears with three games to go. After Owens' touchdown, his second of the game, Tommy Davis kicked his third field goal for the 49ers to cement their fifth victory in nine games.

While Brodie gave the Colts trouble by passing from a new spread formation, the 49er defense intercepted five passes by quarterback John Unitas and recovered a fumble.

The fumble also was by Unitas and these lapses offset his achievement of throwing three touchdown passes. His only satisfaction was in passing for at least one touchdown in his 46th straight game.

Two of the interceptions stifled Colt threats on the 49er 16 and 14 yard lines. The Unitas fumble was recovered on the 49er 21 to kill another opportunity.

Unitas Puts Colts Ahead

Unitas winged the Colts ahead 13-3 in the second quarter on touchdown passes of 10 and 6 yards to Raymond Berry and Alex Hawkins.

Brodie retaliated by sailing the 49ers 86 yards on three passes, the scoring one of 38 yards five seconds before the half ended was on their patented Alley Oop play on which Owens leaped high into the air over Bobby Boyd.

The 49ers forged into a 17-13 lead in the third quarter and had to go only 27 yards for the touchdown. Linebacker Gordon Kelley, a pro rookie from Georgia, fielded in the air a ball dropped by Lenzie Moore after catching a pass from Unitas. The score by J. D. Smith was on a 2-yard plunge.

Unitas put the Colts ahead again 20-17 on a 65-yard scoring pass to Moore. Davis then knotted the field at 20-20 with his 15-yard field goal at 8:25 of the last period.

Eagles Defeat Giants, 31-23, And Hold Lead

Spot N.Y. 17 Points, Win In Last Period

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four crucial pass interceptions helped the Philadelphia Eagles come from behind Tuesday Sunday and defeat the New York Giants 31-23, strengthening their hold on first place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference with only three weeks left in the season.

Trailing 17-0 before the first period was over the Eagles rallied to tie the score, but then fell behind 20-17 on a field goal by New York's Pat Summerall nine seconds before the half ended.

A third period three-point play Summerall widened the Eagles' lead to 23-17 before the Eagles bagged two touchdowns early in the final quarter, thus cementing their eighth straight win against a lone defeat.

Norm Van Brocklin, the Eagles' veteran quarterback, threw three touchdown passes in this second victory in two weeks over New York, the defending division champions.

New York 17 3 3 0-23
Philadelphia 0 17 0 14-31

Cardinals Tie Browns, 17-17

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cleveland fought off a second-half comeback by the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday and settled for a 17-17 tie which moved the Browns even with New York in the National Football League's Eastern Division.

Milt Plum, Browns' quarterback, extended his amazing no-interception record to 170. He completed 13 of 19 passes for 38 yards and two touchdowns.

Plum hasn't had a pass intercepted all season.

Down 17-7 at halftime, the Cardinals dominated the second half. Quarterback John Roach had five passes intercepted, four of them in the second half, and this ruined Card chances to get into position for a possible winning field goal.

The Browns also muffed a possible chance to win when Sam Baker's field goal attempt was wide of the 23 at a difficult angle with less than four minutes to go.

Cleveland 0 17 0 0-17
St. Louis 0 7 3 7-17

Eddie Lopat Joins Twins

To Coach Pitchers, Replaces Bob Swift

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Eddie Lopat, one-time southpaw ace of the New York Yankees and a pitching coach for them last year, was hired as a pitching coach Sunday by the Minnesota Twins, formerly known as the Washington Senators.

The 42-year-old Lopat succeeds Bob Swift, who served as the Senators' pitching coach last season.

Lopat, one of the most dependable southpaws ever to work under Casey Stengel during his reign as Yankee manager, finished his active career with the Yankees and then managed their Richmond farm club in the International League for three seasons.

Lopat was named pitching coach of the Yankees before the 1960 season, succeeding Jim Turner, and was given his release last October shortly after Stengel was fired.

San Francisco Forty Niners Upset Baltimore, 30-22

41-Yard Pass, Lateral Play Decide Game

West Coast Team Sews Up Decision In Final Minutes

BALTIMORE (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers upset the National Football League defending champion Baltimore Colts 30-22 Sunday on a 41-yard touchdown pass and lateral play in the last 1½ minutes.

Bobby Waters, third-string quarterback from Presbyterian, pressed into service because of injuries, and end Dee Mackey, from East Texas State, pulled the see-saw scoring game out of the fire.

Waters, in the game only because quarterbacks John Brodie and Y. A. Tittle were knocked groggy, passed 20 yards to Clyde Conner, and promptly hit Mackey with another heave on the Colt 25. As Mackey was being tackled by Milt Davis and Bob Boyd, he lateraled to R. C. Owens who trotted into the end zone.

Baltimore Leads 22-20

The Colts, just five minutes earlier, appeared to have squeezed out a tough victory when Big Daddy Lipscomb tackled C. R. Roberts in the 49er end zone for a safety and a 22-20 Baltimore lead.

The loss shaved Baltimore's lead in the Western Conference to a half game over the Chicago Bears with three games to go.

After Owens' touchdown, his second of the game, Tommy Davis kicked his third field goal for the 49ers to cement their fifth victory in nine games.

While Brodie gave the Colts trouble by passing from a new spread formation, the 49er defense intercepted five passes by quarterback John Unitas and recovered a fumble.

The fumble also was by Unitas and these lapses offset his achievement of throwing three touchdown passes. His only satisfaction was in passing for at least one touchdown in his 46th straight game.

Two of the interceptions stifled Colt threats on the 49er 16 and 14 yards. The Unitas fumble was recovered on the 49er 21 to kill another opportunity.

Unitas Puts Colts Ahead

Unitas winged the Colts ahead 13-3 in the second quarter on touchdown passes of 10 and 6 yards to Raymond Berry and Alex Hawkins. Brodie retaliated by sailing the 49ers 86 yards on three passes, the scoring one of 38 yards five seconds before the half ended was on their patented Alley Oop play on which Owens leaped high into the air over Bobby Boyd.

The 49ers forged into a 17-13 lead in the third quarter and had to go only 27 yards for the touchdown. Linebacker Gordon Kelley, a pro rookie from Georgia, fielded in the air a ball dropped by Lennie Moore after catching a pass from Unitas. The score by J. D. Smith was on a 2-yard plunge.

Unitas put the Colts ahead again 20-17 on a 65-yard scoring pass to Moore. Davis then knotted the count at 20-20 with his 15-yard field goal at 8:25 of the last period.

Eagles Defeat Giants, 31-23, And Hold Lead

Spot N.Y. 17 Points, Win In Last Period

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four crucial pass interceptions helped the Philadelphia Eagles come from behind Tuesday and defeat the New York Giants 31-23, strengthening their hold on first place in the National Football League's Eastern Division.

Milt Plum, Browns' quarterback, extended his amazing interception record to 170. He completed 13 of 19 passes for 28 yards net and two touchdowns.

Plum hasn't had a pass intercepted since 1957. He has intercepted 170 passes in 17 seasons.

Down 17-7 at halftime, the Cardinals dominated the second half. Quarterback John Roach had five passes intercepted, four of them in the second half, and this ruined Card chances to get into position for a possible winning field goal.

The Browns also muffed a possible chance to win when Sam Baker's field goal attempt was wide from the 23 at a difficult angle with less than four minutes to go.

Eddie Lopat AT THE RACE TRACKS

Joins Twins
To Coach Pitchers, Replaces Bob Swift

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) —

Eddie Lopat, one-time southpaw ace of the New York Yankees and a pitching coach for them last year, was hired as a pitching coach Sunday by the Minnesota Twins, formerly known as the Washington Senators.

The 42-year-old Lopat succeeds Bob Swift, who served as the Senators' pitching coach last season.

Lopat, one of the most dependable southpaws ever to work under Casey Stengel during his reign as Yankee manager, finished his active career with the Yankees and then managed their Richmond farm club in the International League for three seasons.

Lopat was named pitching coach of the Yankees before the 1960 season, succeeding Jim Turner, and was given his release last October shortly after Stengel was fired.

Keyser Legion Seeks Increase In Membership

KEYSER, W. Va. — John F. Somerville, Jr., post commander of Keyser American Legion stated that a large number of reservations have been received for the annual membership dinner and pig roast to be served at the Legion Home Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m.

The pig roast is free to all members and prospective members of the Keyser Post. The only condition of attendance is that 1961 membership dues be paid.

The main feature of the dinner, which is open to members and their wives, is the special 200-pound pig that has been fattening on a nearby West Virginia farm in preparation for the annual dinner.

Somerville announced that the membership goal of Boyce Hauser Post is 300 members or a 33 per cent increase over present membership. This goal is to be attained by December 15. According to post officers half of this goal has already been realized.

Officers of all nearby American Legion Posts have been invited to attend the affair as guests of local legionnaires.

Brothers Four Quartet Sings At STC Dec. 1

FROSTBURG — "The Brothers Four" will present a two-hour concert Thursday at 8:15 p. m. in Compton Hall auditorium of Frostburg State Teachers College, under the auspices of the Student Congress.

Brothers in Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, Dick Foley, Michael Kirkland, John Paine and Bob Flick, started singing together "just for fun" at the University of Washington, Seattle.

After a public appearance in San Francisco, they were spotted and signed by Mort Lewis. Within six months they had a Columbia contract and a record, "Green Fields."

In one month after they arrived in New York, they had made their network television debut on the Jimmy Rodgers Show, and performed on a Mitch Miller spectacular, the Dick Clark show, and Canada's Music '60 show.

They have given performances at many of colleges from coast to coast and recently completed an engagement with Johnny Mathis at the Carter Barron Theater, Washington.

Eugene Kidwell, chairman, has announced that 900 tickets are on sale to both the public and student body, on a first-come, first-served basis.

Pat Lavelle and Louise Dowton are in charge of publicity and ticket sales. Tickets are being sold by students and merchants.

Piano Recital Series Planned At College

FROSTBURG — James Pierce, a member of the Music Department faculty at Frostburg State Teachers College, will present the first in a series of piano recitals Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in Compton Hall auditorium.

The program will include selections from works by Scarlatti, Beethoven, Bartok and Brahms.

Following the performance here Pierce will go to Buffalo, N. Y., where he will join his brother, Rodney Pierce, for a recital Sunday afternoon, December 4. Rodney Pierce is principal oboist with the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra.

On December 18, Pierce, assisted by his wife, Mrs. Sara Pierce, soprano, will present a lecture-recital at the University Friends Church in Wichita, Kansas, on the subject: "Music and The Religious Experience." He will complete the series of appearances with a concert at Towson State Teachers College on January 5.

Before joining the music faculty at Frostburg State last year, Pierce taught at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. While there, he performed in Jordan Hall, appeared a number of times on WGBH, Boston's educational television station, and, with his brothers, performed regularly at the Gardner Museum.

Pierce received his bachelor of music degree from Friends University in Wichita, and his master of music degree from the Conservatory of Music, Kansas City. He has studied with Wiktor Labunski and Pierre Labushtz.

Pierce's recital is the second in a series of faculty presented this fall at the college. Dr. Ward K. Coie, chairman of the department of music, said the recital is open to the public without charge.

All Stray Dogs To Be Impounded

FROSTBURG — Burza Hanlin, county dog warden, issued a warning due to the number of complaints being received at the Frostburg City Hall. He stated that all dogs found running loose, with or without dog tags, will be picked up and impounded. This will be done within the city limits as a result of the recent action by the city government.

More than eight persons have been bitten by dogs within the past several weeks. All have complained to the City Hall. The authorization to apprehend the dogs was given by William Goebel, police commissioner. Jack Starkey, patrolman of the Police Department, was bitten last week when removing a dog from the street after it was struck by a car.

Frances Bolt Is Football Queen At Beall

McCoolle School Children Stage Pilgrim Days

McCOOLE — A Thanksgiving assembly was given at McCoolle School prior to dismissal for the Thanksgiving holiday, according to Harold L. Scott, principal.

A Thanksgiving play entitled "Pilgrim Days" was given by the children of Miss Mary Biggs, fourth and fifth grades.

Kenneth Kile opened by reading a passage of Scripture. Pilgrim girls and boys were played by Brenda Zirk, Eunice Gordon, Mary Ann Burt, Cindy Smith, Thomas Kinnie, Donald Bray, Michael Bartik, and Frank Smith.

The children of the fifth and sixth grades of Mrs. Alyce Willis told by word and illustration of the customs surrounding Thanksgiving in some of the other countries of the world. They sang the song, "We Thank Thee," accompanied by Mrs. Willis on the piano to end their portion of the program. # IN WILD WEST GERMANY

Wenni Walbrunn is champ trick roper of Cowboy Club of Munich.

This might well be a scene on the Crow Indian reservation in Montana, but it was taken deep in Bavaria, on the edge of the Black Forest.

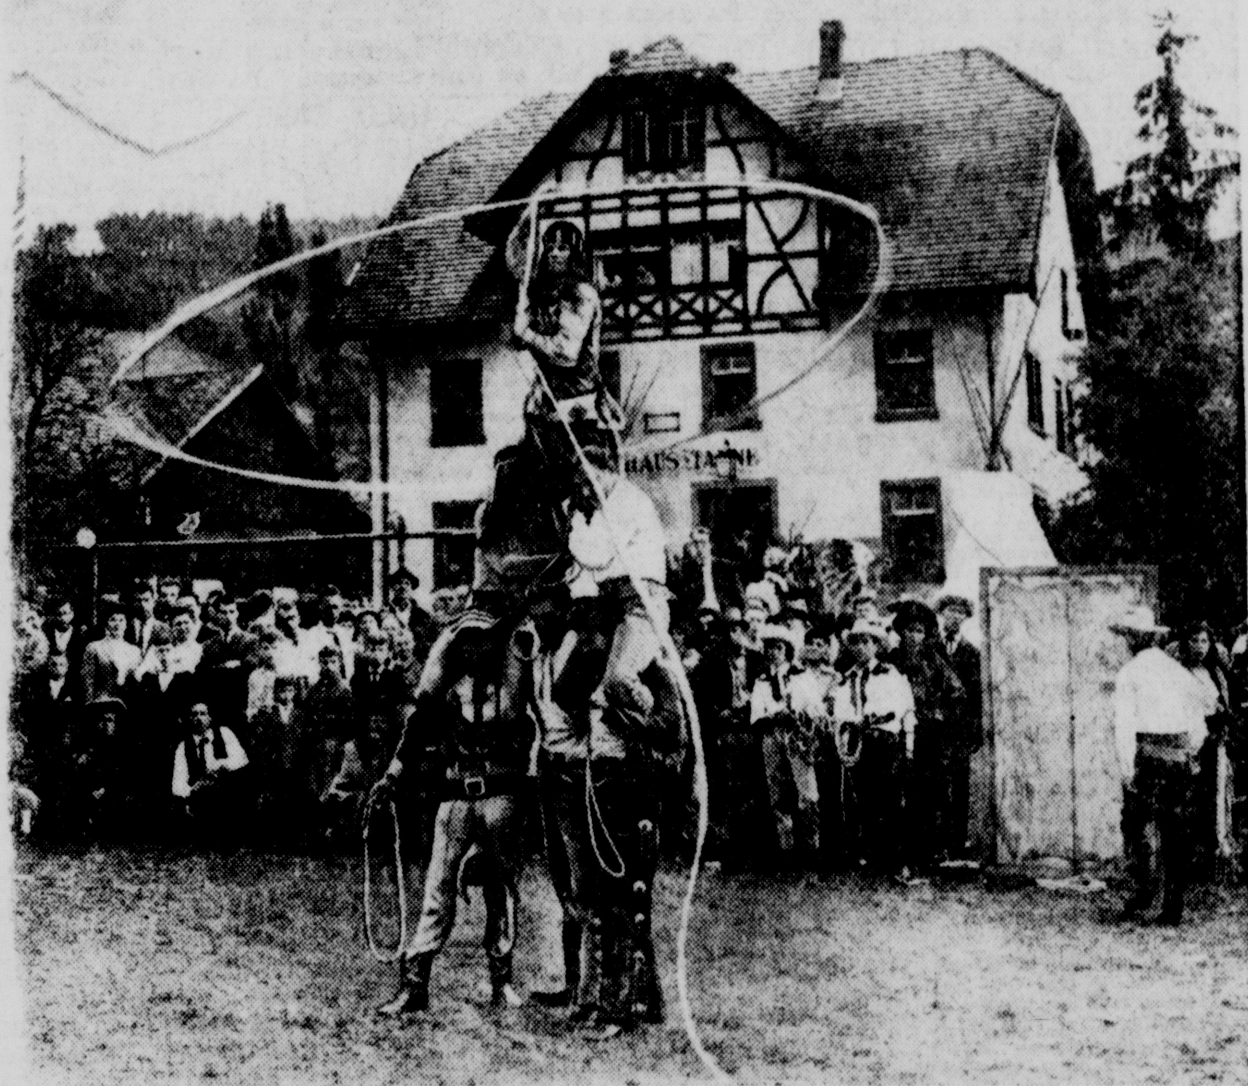

German cowboys make like Western bronco busters as they gather at the bar for drinks. It's in the headquarters of the Cowboy Club of Munich.

America's frontier days have come alive again—in Germany.

From time to time, Indian war whoops and cowboys' gunfire shatter the peace of a Bavarian countryside. Smoke rises from fires in front of a dozen teepees. German "rot hauts" (redskins) weave to and fro in a frenzied war dance, cowboys twirl lariats with the skill of a Texas cowpuncher. A German Indian and cowboy club encampment is in progress.

There are 23 of these clubs scattered over Germany from the North Sea to the southern borders of the Black Forest. The first one, the Cowboy Club of Munich, was founded in 1913, followed by the Buffalo Cowboy Club of Freiburg. Then came the Indian Ogala Club in Duesseldorf, the Indianerfreunde Club of Karlsruhe, the Wild West Club of Frankfurt and other similar groups. They all participate each year in one large encampment. This year's gathering was near Cologne.

A visit of a Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and the writings of Karl May, a German author, on the American Indian and the exciting West were said to have inspired the Germans to form the clubs. No doubt Western movies helped in the process.

With a German gasthaus (inn) as a backdrop, these Nordic cowboys and Indians do rope spinning that would be a credit to any real Western rodeo.

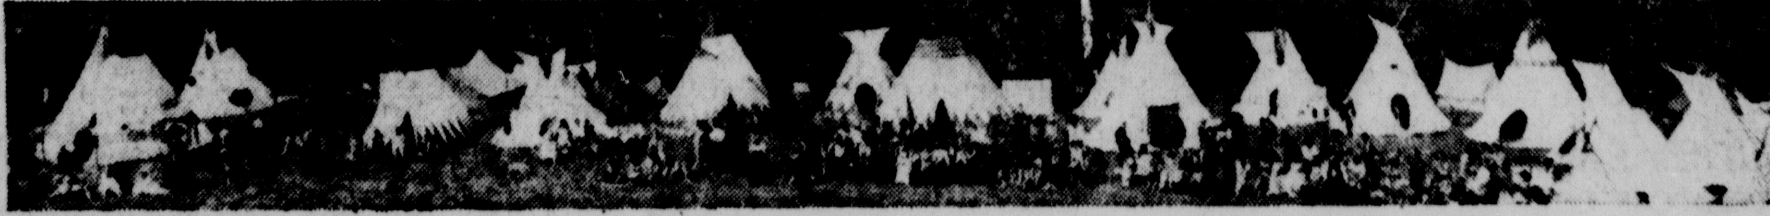

To the beat of tom-toms, German "rot hauts" stage a dance against a background of teepees "made in Germany."

Hoop dances of American southwest Indians are skillfully executed by these German redskins.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(Copyright 1960: The Chicago Tribune)

Q. 1—As South you hold:

AKQJ 10 9 AKQ 2 9 6 4 AK
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 Pass
2 Pass 2 Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—There is no doubt that a game contract should be undertaken, but there is no need to commit this hand at no trump when it might better play at spades. If partner has a double club stopper, no trump may be superior. But should be given the option by a bid of three spades. This is a strength showing call and offers partner the choice of four spades or three no trump.

Q. 2—As dealer you hold:

AKQJ 6 4 2 AK 6 3 7 4 3

What is your opening bid?

A—Some players would be tempted to open this hand with one club in order to provide an easy rebid of one spade, but this is a poor choice, however, is for an opening bid of one spade. It is not our practice to open with a three card club suit which does not contain an honor.

Q. 3—You are South, have 60 part score, and hold:

AKJ 10 4 AK 7 3 9 5 AKQ 6 3

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts. This bid can be construed in no other light than that of an ace showing bid. Spades have been agreed upon as trumps, and partner by overbidding the game is not merely showing that he has diamonds, but is making a distinct effort toward slam. You have the right kind of cards to slam purposes, and you should not be bashful about mentioning the fact.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

6 4 8 5 4 AKQ 10 8 7 5 AK 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 Pass 1 Pass
2 Pass 3 Pass
1 NT Pass 2 Pass

What do you bid now?

A—East has announced a game going bid, and while you might desire to interrupt communications between the opponents, you cannot afford to go very high because it might prove costly should they abandon their game and double you instead. However, partner should be advised that you have diamond support and some high card value. You may do this by doubling the bid.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

7 4 6 3 AKQ 8 6 5 2 9 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 Pass 1 Pass
2 Pass 2 Pass
3 Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—The suggested bid is a jump to four diamonds. In view of your previous refusal to bid, partner cannot expect more than this, but is entitled to know that you have a good diamond suit in view of the fact that he wishes to contract for game tho you may have little or nothing.

Q. 6—Both sides have 60 part score and as South you hold:

AKQ 7 3 5 AKQ 9 4 2 AK 6 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 Pass 1 Pass
2 Pass 4 Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Three diamonds. You must contemplate the practical necessity for bidding twice in view of the part score situation. It is a moral certainty that the opponents will contest at three hearts. You will then be in a position to compete once more with a bid of three spades.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

AK 5 AKQ 9 8 5 4 3 6 6 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 4 Pass
Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Your preemptive bid has warned partner that you are not to be relied upon for any defensive strength, and he is therefore doubling on his own power. The fact that you hold the king of spades should be a pleasant surprise. For you to go on to five hearts would be an unwarranted usurpation of authority.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. There is a temptation to re-bid to two spades on this hand, but it should be curbed. Your hand is such a minimum that there can be no reasonable hope of a game.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(Copyright 1960, The Chicago Tribune)

Q. 1—As South you hold:

AKQJ 10 9 AKQ 2 9 6 4 AK

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

Pass Pass 1 A Pass

2 NT Pass 2 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A. There is no doubt that a game contract should be undertaken, but there is no need to commit this hand at no trump when it might better play at spades. If partner has a double club stopper, no trump may be superior. But should be given the option by a bid of three spades. This is a strength showing call and offers partner the choice of four spades or three no trump.

Q. 2—As dealer you hold:

AKQJ 10 9 AKQ 2 9 6 4 AK

What is your opening bid?

A. Some players would be tempted to open this hand with one club in order to provide an easy rebid of one spade. Our own choice, however, is for an opening bid of one spade. It is not our practice to open with a club suit which does not contain an honor.

Q. 3—You are South, have 60 part score, and hold:

AKJ 10 4 9 7 3 9 5 5 AKQ 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 A Pass 1 A Pass

2 NT Pass 3 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Three hearts. This bid can be construed in no other light than that of an ace showing bid. Spades have been agreed upon as trumps, and partner by overbidding the game is not merely showing that he has diamonds, which actually he may not have, but is making a distinct effort toward slam. You have the right kind of cards to slam purposes, and you should not be bashful about mentioning the fact.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

AK 6 4 8 5 4 9 10 8 7 5 4 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 A Pass 1 A Pass

1 NT Pass 2 A Pass

What do you bid?

A. East has announced a game going hand, and while you might desire to interrupt communications between the opponents, you cannot afford to go very high because it might prove costly should they abandon their game and double you instead. However, partner should be advised that you have diamond support and some high card value. You may do this by doubling the value.

The bidding has proceeded:

A. The suggested bid is a jump to four diamonds. In view of your previous refusal to bid, partner cannot expect more than this, but is entitled to know that you have a good diamond suit in view of the fact that he wishes to contract for game you may have little or nothing.

1 A 1 A 2 NT 2 NT

What do you bid?

A. Three diamonds. You must contemplate the practical necessity for bidding twice in view of the part score situation. It is a moral certainty that the opponents will contest at three hearts. You will then be in a position to compete once more with a bid of three spades.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

AK 5 9 AKQ 9 8 5 4 3 6 6 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A. Pass. Your preemptive bid has warned partner that you are not to be relied upon for any defensive strength, and he is therefore doubling on his own power. The fact that you hold the king of spades should be a pleasant surprise. For you to go on to five hearts would be an unwarranted usurpation of authority.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

AK 6 2 AK 5 3 9 7 AK 10 9 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 A Pass 1 A Pass

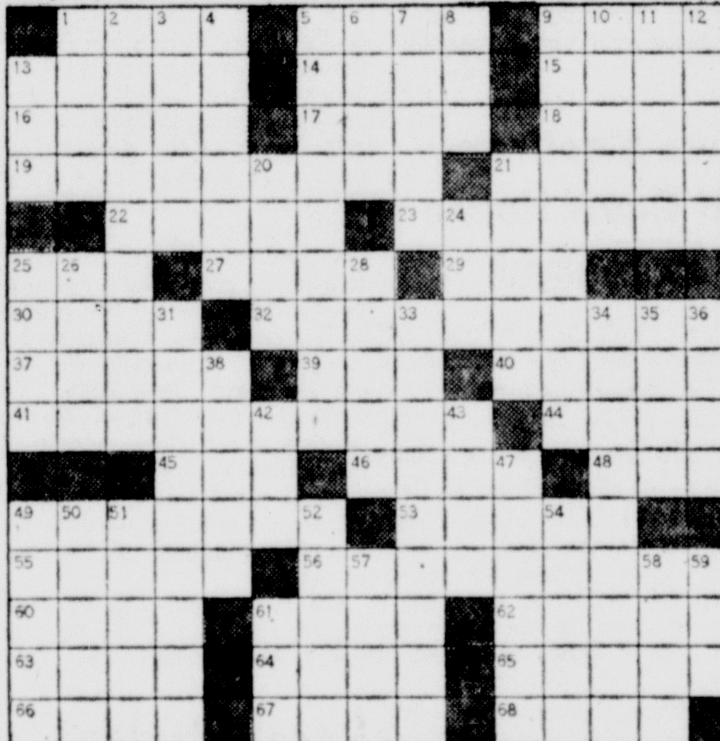

1 NT Pass 2 A Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Pass. There is a temptation to return to five spades on this hand, but it should be curbed. Your hand is such a minimum that there can be no reasonable hope of a game.

Beginning with the month of June 1959, when the present magistrates assumed their duties, through September 1960, a total of 4,607 cases have been docketed by the two magistrates, and a total of $17,360.69 has been collected for the use of Allegany County.

On the dockets of Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, the report shows a total of 882 civil cases recorded, with costs collected amounting to $1,947.75. The magistrate has tried 123 criminal cases and has collected $1,350.25 in fines and costs. A total of 1,280 motor vehicle cases were handled by Magistrate Weatherholt during the period and the county received $1,399.64 in court costs, plus $3 from the state for each case, or $3,840 from this source. This is in addition to motor vehicle fines imposed, all of which revert to the state of Maryland. The total collected for the county by Magistrate Weatherholt is $8,537.64, Mr. Valentine noted.

Other Collections

On the dockets which have been the responsibility of former Magistrate Peter J. Carpentri and now Magistrate Paul Barnett during the same period, a total of 2,322 cases have been handled.

These include 773 civil suits, with costs received by the county totaling $1,758. There were 67 criminal trials with fines and costs to the county totaling $1,093.35. The two magistrates handled 1,482 motor vehicle cases which provided the county with $1,615.70 in court costs, plus $3 from the state for each case docketed. This amounts to $4,446. The total earned for the county on the Carpentri-Barnett dockets is $8,823.05 during the period.

Mr. Valentine also pointed out that this volume of business in the court is in addition to rent, distraints, attachments, judgments issued, warrants issued, summonses served, dog licenses sold, bounties executed and consultations and referrals.

He noted that the two sitting magistrates also alternate each month as city police magistrates and are on constant call by city police as well as state police, to meet emergencies when the services of a magistrate are needed.

Much time, he said is taken up by people who come to Trial Magistrates Court seeking help or advice of one kind or another.

During one typical month, he observed, one of the magistrates kept a calendar record of conferences.

Many Seek Advice, Help

The record showed that 42 persons sought counsel on family or domestic problems. Thirteen sought counsel or advice on financial problems. Nine sought legal advice.

Of this total, 21 were referred to social agencies, such as the Red Cross, Welfare Board, Heart Association, or Associated Charities. Family budgets were prepared for nine and counsel given on budget management. Six persons were referred to their clergyman, and 14 were advised to see an attorney of their choice. Five were referred to the Veterans Administration and one to the Social Security Administration.

Mr. Valentine pointed out that Trial Magistrates Court is the only court many people ever contact, and an effort is made by the magistrates to offer whatever public assistance is possible, consistent with normal duties and responsibilities.

The court is looked upon as a public service institution and source of information for many citizens who cannot afford or cannot otherwise find the information they need, Mr. Valentine said. It was originally established as a "sort of poor man's haven, and it is certainly living up to its purpose," he concluded.

Institution For Animals Is Completed

This new animal hospital, equipped to take care of 55 dogs, has been opened on Winchester Road by Dr. Edwin L. Everhart, local veterinarian. Work was started on the brick building in late July and has just been completed. The building is located on the southerly side of Winchester Road about two-and-one-half miles from Cresaptown.

New Hospital For Animals Opens In County

Institution Begins On Winchester Road

A new hospital has just been opened along Winchester Road, about two-and-one-half miles from Cresaptown.

It is an animal hospital with a capacity of 55 dogs which Dr. Edwin L. Everhart, local veterinarian, has just completed.

Dr. Everhart, a native of Purcellville, Va., began his veterinary practice nearly three years ago — in January 1958. Until his new hospital was completed he had been practicing at 901 Mc. Mullen Highway in Bowling Green.

Facilities in the new establishment on Winchester Road include a reception room, office, examining room, surgery room, drug room, x-ray room and a kennel capacity of 55 dogs with outside exercise pens.

The building, which also serves as the residence of the Everhart family, is 69 by 26 feet in size, according to the county building permit which was issued for the structure last July 26. It is situated about 75 feet from Winchester Road on an 8.25 acre tract.

Dr. Everhart explains that the kennels are used to hospitalize certain cases requiring it, as well as for boarding facilities.

The veterinarian obtained his undergraduate education at Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, where he received a bachelor of science degree. He obtained his doctor of veterinary medicine degree from the University of Georgia. He practiced briefly in Garrett County before coming here early in 1958.

Dr. Everhart's wife, Betty, is a native of Marion, Va. They have two daughters.

Scrub Pine Burns On Shriver's Hill

A fire believed of incendiary origin burned about one-quarter acre of scrub pine on Shriver's Hill some 50 feet off Valley Road about 5 p. m. yesterday.

East Side firemen responded to the call, about one-half mile inside the city limits, and remained on the scene 33 minutes, until 5:30 p. m. Although the blaze occurred inside the city limits, eight volunteers from the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company, headed by Secretary Lamar Minnick, also responded and stayed at the scene about an hour to be certain that the fire was extinguished.

First report to city firemen was that a sawdust pile was on fire. However, it was disclosed later that the fire was some distance from a sawmill in that area.

Local Man Injured In Wreck 'Critical'

Samuel L. Voorhees, 54, of 10 Race Street, was reported still in "critical" condition last night at Memorial Hospital where he was admitted Saturday night after being injured in an auto accident.

Mr. Voorhees sustained a fractured arm, fractured ribs, fractured jaw and lacerations of the head and face when the car he was operating left Oldtown Road and struck a culvert.

Ground School Will Open Wednesday

The first session of a ground school for persons interested in acquiring a private pilot's license will be held Wednesday night at Fort Hill High School.

The class will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. in Room 115 at Fort Hill and will be conducted by G. Wyatt Brenaman, a licensed ground school instructor.

The initial topic of the course is titled "Theory of Flight." Other subjects that will be covered during the school are reading of weather maps and reports, air regulations, engine- and accessories.

Some 28 persons already have signed up for the school and anyone interested in flying is invited to Wednesday's session. Among those planning to take the course are a number of persons who have private or commercial licenses.

The course is an aid to those interested in getting a pilot's license and a refresher course for those persons who secured their licenses a number of years ago before a written examination was part of the requirements for a license.

The ground school is free except for a small fee for supplies.

The local flying group also announced that several local persons have received flight instructions and have soloed during the past several weeks.

They are William Twigg, George M. Griffith Jr., Dr. Ralph W. Ballin and Samuel Wertheimer, all of Cumberland.

County Sends 39 Inmates To Institutions

Trails Behind Many State Areas

Only 39 persons were committed to state penal institutions from Allegany County during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1959, according to the 33d annual report of the Maryland Department of Correction to Governor J. Millard Tawes.

That 39 represents less than one per cent of the 3,923 persons committed from Baltimore City and the 23 Maryland counties. Some 2,435 or more than 62 per cent of them were committed from Baltimore City.

Of those "sent up" from Allegany County, 19 were sent to the House of Correction, nine to the Reformatory for Males and three to the Reformatory for Women.

Although Allegany County now ranks sixth in population among Maryland's 23 counties, it is 12th in the number of persons committed in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1959. After Baltimore City, in order, come Prince George's County, 219; Anne Arundel, 183; Baltimore, 174; Montgomery, 123; Frederick, 86; Washington, 78; Wicomico, 76; Worcester, 63; Harford, 59; Howard, 47; Cecil, 44, and Allegany, 39.

Garrett County committed 21 during the same 12 months, 18 to the House of Correction and three to the Reformatory for Males.

Of the 3,923 committed from throughout Maryland, 2,407 were sent to the House of Correction, 846 to the Reformatory for Males, 391 to the Penitentiary and 279 to the Reformatory for Women.

Another table in the annual report discloses that more than one-third of the committed persons were natives of Baltimore City. Another 695 were born in one of the 23 Maryland counties. More than 100 were natives of each of six other states.

The leader among those born outside Maryland was Virginia with 406, followed by North Carolina, 380; South Carolina, 204; West Virginia, 136; Pennsylvania, 135, and the District of Columbia, 129. All but eight states were represented and 15 of those committed were born outside continental United States.

GOP Appoints New District Study Unit

Beall, Reed Will Be On Committee

U. S. Senators J. Glenn Beall and John Marshall Butler and Delegate Lester B. Reed will serve on the committee formed by Maryland Republicans to study the question of the location of the new Congressional district the state will get as a result of the population increase shown by the 1960 Census.

Other members of the committee are Samuel Hopkins, Baltimore, chairman; State Senator Harry T. Phoebus, Somerset County; Carlyle J. Lancaster, Prince Georges County; James P. S. Devereux, Baltimore County; Gilbert Gude, Montgomery County, and Samuel A. Culotta, Baltimore.

D. Eldred Rinehart, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Maryland, said the committee will submit a report on its recommendations to the 1961 session of the state legislature, which is scheduled to act on the re-districting matter.

"The Republican Party believes that the new district should be formed to help insure equitable representation for all the citizens of Maryland," Mr. Rinehart said, "and we intend to make our recommendations accordingly. We will make a very special effort to see that no individuals or counties are harmed by the re-districting," he said, "and that the rights of all groups and organizations are carefully respected in the processes."

The first meeting of the committee will be held in the near future, Mr. Rinehart said.

Additional hearings are scheduled for Friday, December 2, and Monday, December 5, Senator See said.

While this hearing is in progress, the Board of County Commissioners is scheduled for a meeting with the County Board of Education.

Warfield To Speak Next Week

Edwin M. Warfield III, chairman of a commission to study higher education needs in Maryland, will outline the commission's proposals at a meeting of the Allegany County Council PTA next Monday night at 8 o'clock at West Side School.

Mrs. B. R. Lewis, president of the County Council, said the meeting originally was scheduled for Gephart School, but was transferred to West Side because more space is available there.

The meeting is open to the public, and Mrs. Lewis said special invitations have been sent to Allegany County members of the General Assembly, to the Allegany County Board of Education, and to other interested officials.

Mr. Warfield's commission submitted to Governor J. Millard Tawes a non-controversial report urging establishment of branches of the University of Maryland at the present state teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury.

Last month, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., president of the State Board of Education, addressed the county council at a meeting at Mr. Savage School. He outlined a rival plan for higher education which has been proposed by the state board. This involves expansion of the curriculum of the school, will present a program on automobile engines and transmissions.

When the meeting is held at some future date, Wallace M. Walker, an instructor at the school, will present a program on automobile engines and transmissions.

Postpones Meeting

Cumberland Chapter 377, Safe Teen, has postponed indefinitely a special meeting that was to have been held tomorrow night at Allegany Trades School on Paca Street.

When the meeting is held at some future date, Wallace M. Walker, an instructor at the school, will present a program on automobile engines and transmissions.

WILLIAM E. BUFORD

Kiwanis Will Hear Talk On Space Airplane

Martin Executive Will Address Club

William Ellerbe Buford, currently head of the flight mechanics section of the Dyna-Soar program at the Martin Company in Baltimore, will address the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at its meeting at 12:15 p. m. Thursday at Central YMCA.

"Contrast Between An ICBM And A Space Airplane" will be the title of Mr. Buford's lecture. He is responsible for performance, aerodynamics, staging and flight stability of the Dyna-Soar for the Baltimore firm.

A native of Newberry, S.C., Mr. Buford was graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1942 with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering. Following Navy service in World War II, he received his Bachelor of Aeronautical Engineering Degree from Georgia Tech in 1946.

He has been employed by the Martin Company since 1946. First he was a junior engineer in experimental aerodynamics. From 1948 until 1956, he served as an aerodynamics project engineer in the ballistic research labs at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland. He returned with Martin four years ago in the Denver Division.

W. Va. Hunters Receive Warning Of Fire Danger

Deer hunters were all set to flock to the woods in nearby West Virginia this morning as the deer season gets under way with a warning of caution from District Forester John A. Porter of Romney, who serves eight counties in the eastern portion of that state.

Mr. Porter had been hoping for some weekend precipitation but none was reported in any of the eight counties he serves. There were heavy winds and mild temperatures and plenty of signs that the West Virginia counties will be attacked by thousands of potential deer-slayers.

The district forester urged all hunters to exercise extreme care with fire as well as firearms in the woods, quite dry because of the absence of rainfall.

Mr. Porter said that the Gerstell Hollow fire Friday afternoon in Mineral County near Keyser burned three acres. The only fire reported yesterday was on the George Washington National Forest near Wardensville in Hardy County and it burned about 10 acres, the forester was informed.

Mr. Weatherholt said that in handling cases where drink has been a problem or where it appears it is an "escapism," he refers the prisoner to the Department of Mental Health. He praised the work of Mrs. Ella Everstine in that department, for her work with these men, arranging appointments with a psychiatrist, and helping them understand their problems.

He said this system is working splendidly but the number to be accommodated here is infinitesimal. He also noted that referrals have been made to clergymen, to the Red Cross, the Social Security Administration, to the Veterans Administration and to the Heart Association.

He said these agencies have all worked diligently and patiently with some of the worst cases, and great progress is being shown.

Urges Support

The problem is a community and statewide problem, he noted, and urged support of all good citizens in any program which will provide adequate care and rehabilitation of these citizens.

The 32 cases most frequently listed 18 months or so ago, have been reduced to nine. Only a couple of them are considered "mean or troublesome."

Mr. Weatherholt said he feels the church and church groups must face the fact that when young people grow out of scouting, as many leave when they become 16 or over, it is up to the church and school and the home, to arouse the interests of these people for a few more years. They must have no excuse to frequent beer halls and saloons.

In summary, he declared, much wholesome education is needed in school, church and home. The

Local Court Shows Increase In Case Load

Trial Magistrates Docket 4,607 Actions

A report compiled by Clarence D. Valentine, chief clerk of Trial Magistrates Court here, shows the case load and income to Allegany County and the State of Maryland has been steadily increasing.

Beginning with the month of June 1959, when the present magistrates assumed their duties, through September 1960, a total of 4,607 cases have been docketed by the two magistrates, and a total of $17,360.69 has been collected for the use of Allegany County.

On the dockets of Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, the report shows a total of 882 civil cases recorded, with costs collected amounting to $1,947.75. The magistrate has tried 123 criminal cases and has collected $1,350.25 in fines and costs. A total of 1,280 motor vehicle cases were handled by Magistrate Weatherholt during the period and the county received $1,399.64 in court costs, plus $3 from the state for each case, or $3,840 from this source. This is in addition to motor vehicle fines imposed, all of which reverts to the state of Maryland. The total collected for the county by Magistrate Weatherholt is $8,537.64, Mr. Valentine noted.

Other Collections

On the dockets which have been the responsibility of former Magistrate Peter J. Carpentieri and now Magistrate Paul Barnett during the same period, a total of 2,322 cases have been handled.

These include 773 civil suits, with costs received by the county totaling $1,758. There were 67 criminal trials with fines and costs to the county totaling $1,003.35. The two magistrates handled 1,482 motor vehicle cases which provided the county with $1,615.70 in court costs, plus $3 from the state for each case docketed. This amounts to $4,446. The total earned for the county on the Carpentieri-Barnett dockets is $8,823.05 during the period.

Mr. Valentine also pointed out that this volume of business in the court is in addition to rent distrainers, attachments, judgments issued, warrants issued, summons served, dog licenses sold, bounties executed and consultations and referrals.

He noted that the two sitting magistrates also alternate each month as city police magistrates and are on constant call by city police as well as state police, to meet emergencies when the services of a magistrate are needed.

Much time, he said is taken up by people who come to Trial Magistrates Court seeking help or advice of one kind or another.

Many Seek Advice, Help

The record showed that 42 persons sought counsel on family or domestic problems. Thirteen sought counsel or advice on financial problems. Nine sought legal advice.

Of this total, 21 were referred to social agencies, such as the Red Cross, Welfare Board, Heart Association, or Associated Charities. Family budgets were prepared for nine and counsel given on budget management. Six persons were referred to their clergyman, and 14 were advised to see an attorney of their choice. Five were referred to the Veterans Administration and one to the Social Security Administration.

Mr. Valentine pointed out that Trial Magistrates Court is the only court many people ever contact, and an effort is made by the magistrates to offer whatever public assistance is possible, consistent with normal duties and responsibilities.

The court is looked upon as a public service institution and source of information for many citizens who cannot afford or cannot otherwise find the information they need, Mr. Valentine said. It was originally established as a "sort of poor man's haven, and it is certainly living up to its purpose," he concluded.

County Sends 39 Inmates To Institutions

Trails Behind Many State Areas

Only 39 persons were committed to state penal institutions from Allegany County during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1959, according to the 33d annual report of the Maryland Department of Correction to Governor J. Millard Tawes.

That 39 represents less than one per cent of the 3,923 persons committed from Baltimore City and the 23 Maryland counties. Some 2,435 or more than 62 per cent of them were committed from Baltimore City.

Of those "sent up" from Allegany County, 19 were sent to the House of Correction, nine to the State Penitentiary, eight to the Reformatory for Males and three to the Reformatory for Women.

Although Allegany County now ranks sixth in population among Maryland's 23 counties, it is 12th in the number of persons committed in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1959. After Baltimore City, in order, come Prince George's County, 219; Anne Arundel, 183; Baltimore, 174; Montgomery, 123; Frederick, 86; Washington, 78; Wicomico, 76; Worcester, 63; Harford, 59; Howard, 47; Cecil, 44, and Allegany, 39.

Garrett County committed 21 during the same 12 months, 18 to the House of Correction and three to the Reformatory for Males.

Of the 3,923 committed throughout Maryland, 2,407 were sent to the House of Correction, 846 to the Reformatory for Males, 391 to the Penitentiary and 279 to the Reformatory for Women.

Another table in the annual report discloses that more than one-third of the committed persons were natives of Baltimore City. Another 695 were born in one of the 23 Maryland counties. More than 100 were natives of each of six other states.

The leader among those born outside Maryland was Virginia with 406, followed by North Carolina, 380; South Carolina, 204; West Virginia, 136; Pennsylvania, 135, and the District of Columbia, 129. All but eight states were represented and 15 of those committed were born outside continental United States.

GOP Appoints New District Study Unit

Beall, Reed Will Be On Committee

U. S. Senators J. Glenn Beall and John Marshall Butler and Delegate Lester B. Reed will serve on the committee formed by Maryland Republicans to study the question of the location of the new Congressional district the state will get as a result of the population increase shown by the 1960 Census.

Other members of the committee are Samuel Hopkins, Baltimore, chairman; State Senator Harry T. Phoebus, Somerset County; Carlyle J. Lancaster, Prince Georges County; James P. S. Devereux, Baltimore County; Gilbert Gude, Montgomery County, and Samuel A. Culotta, Baltimore.

D. Eldred Rinehart, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Maryland, said the committee will submit a report on its recommendations to the 1961 session of the state legislature, which is scheduled to act on the re-districting matter.

"The Republican Party believes that the new district should be formed to help insure equitable representation for all the citizens of Maryland," Mr. Rinehart said, "and we intend to make our recommendations accordingly. We will make a very special effort to see that no individuals or counties are harmed by the re-districting," he said, "and that the rights of all groups and organizations are carefully respected in the processes."

The first meeting of the committee will be held in the near future, Mr. Rinehart said.

Additional hearings are scheduled for Friday, December 2, and Monday, December 5, Senator See said.

While this hearing is in progress, the Board of County Commissioners is scheduled for a meeting with the County Board of Education.

Local Student Given Second Scholarship

W. Leroy Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry, 205 South Street, has received his second consecutive engineering scholarship certificate from Cumberland Council 53, Universal Craftsmen Council of Engineers.

Mr. Henry, a Fort Hill High School graduate, is an electrical engineer student at the University of Pittsburgh.

While in high school he was on the basketball, football and track teams, and at graduation he won several awards, including the Welcome Home award, a prize in mathematics, and the Beta Sigma Omicron scholarship award.

At college, he has maintained an "A" average and has been invited to join Phi Eta Sigma, a national freshman honorary society.

He is the second area student to be assisted in his engineering studies by Cumberland Council 53. The Universal Craftsmen Council of Engineers is an engineering society composed of members of the Masonic fraternity of the tri-state area. Sons, daughters and grandchildren of members of the society are eligible for the awards.

Postpones Meeting

Cumberland Chapter 377, Safety, has postponed indefinitely a special meeting that was to have been held tomorrow night at Allegany Trades School on Paca Street.

WILLIAM E. BUFORD

Kiwanis Will Hear Talk On Space Airplane

Martin Executive Will Address Club

William Ellerbe Buford, currently head of the flight mechanics section of the Dyna-Soar program at the Martin Company in Baltimore, will address the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at its meeting at 12:15 p.m. Thursday at Central YMCA.

"Contrast Between An ICBM And A Space Airplane" will be the title of Mr. Buford's lecture. He is responsible for performance, aerodynamics, staging and flight stability of the Dyna-Soar for the Baltimore firm.

A native of Newberry, S.C., Mr. Buford was graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1942 with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering. Following Navy service in World War II, he received his Bachelor of Aeronautical Engineering Degree from Georgia Tech in 1946.

He has been employed by the Martin Company since 1946. First he was a junior engineer in experimental aerodynamics. From 1948 until 1956, he served as an aerodynamics project engineer in the ballistic research labs at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland. ## W. Va. Hunters Receive Warning Of Fire Danger

Deer hunters were all set to flock to the woods in nearby West Virginia this morning as the deer season gets under way with a warning of caution from District Forester John A. Porter of Romney, who serves eight counties in the eastern portion of that state.

Mr. Porter had been hoping for some weekend precipitation but none was reported in any of the eight counties he serves. There were heavy winds and mild temperatures and plenty of signs that the West Virginia counties will be attacked by thousands of potential deerlayers.

The district forester urged all hunters to exercise extreme care with fire as well as firearms in the woods, quite dry because of the absence of rainfall.

Mr. Porter said that the Gerstell Hollow fire Friday afternoon in Mineral County near Keyser burned three acres. The only fire reported yesterday was at George Washington National Forest near Wardsville in Hardy County and it burned about 10 acres, the forester was informed.

Receives Scholarship

W. Leroy Henry, right, receives an engineering scholarship certificate from James E. Rutledge, left, past worthy chief of Cumberland Council 53, Universal Craftsmen Council of Engineers, as Wilmer B. Nunamaker, worthy chief, looks on. The award was Mr. Henry's second from the organization.

Magistrate Urges Action On Alcoholism

Says Public Help Needed For Problem

"Alcoholism is a social as well as a medical problem," Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt told a study group at Grace Methodist Church last night. He declared, "The home, church and school are the foundation of training in all moral standards, and in the area of alcoholism, more interest should be given the problem as a social question."

Citing his observations as a police and trial magistrate, the speaker said there are shortcomings in the laws, and in the attitudes of lawmakers toward the growing problem of alcoholism as a disease.

He noted that the public, if aroused, can have legislation passed and adopted to remedy any evil or to improve any condition. Alcohol control and the problem of alcoholism is no exception, he said.

Citing the efforts of the Maryland Trial Magistrates Association in coping with the problem, he said Gov. J. Millard Tawes, at the behest of magistrates and other groups, appointed a commission to make a thorough study of the problem in Maryland. The report is to be ready for consideration by the General Assembly which convenes in January.

75,000 In State

Mr. Weatherholt said preliminary results of this survey and study show there are about 75,000 alcoholics in the state, with Allegany County ranking fourth, led only by Baltimore, Montgomery, and Prince Georges counties, in that order.

Touching on problems created in the home and community by chronic alcoholics, Mr. Weatherholt said that millions of productive man hours are lost annually because of drinking. Homes are destroyed and families placed in dire need and want. Children and wives are neglected, and if the wife is an alcoholic, the husband is neglected.

This ultimately leads to domestic and marital strife, often violence and divorce. Children are marked emotionally for the rest of their lives and suffer lack of normal opportunity and security.

The speaker recalled that when he took office as a police and trial magistrate, he realized one of the biggest problems in the city was the large number of habitual alcoholics constantly before the courts. A survey showed some 32 "regulars," who either signed into the city jail as "sleepers" or who were arrested regularly on charges of "drunk."

Changes In Program

The city solicitor and mayor and council cooperated to update old ordinances, and to pass a new ordinance providing for a work gang for prisoners in the city jail.

Mr. Weatherholt said that when some of these chronic cases realized they were going to have to work and could not just "sleep it off" in the jail any time they desired, they began to "straighten up."

The speaker told his audience that there have been as many as a dozen on work gangs, but in the past couple of months the number has steadily dwindled, and today there is only one. This man is helping about the police station, washing cars, doing janitorial work and is being used as a handyman. He was given only five days, but on Saturday asked the magistrate to give him 10 more days "because I feel so much better when I keep busy and stay sober."

Mr. Weatherholt said that in handling cases where drink has been a problem or where it appears it is an "escapeism," he refers the prisoner to the Department of Mental Health. He praised the work of Mrs. Ella Everstine in that department, for her work with these men, arranging appointments with a psychiatrist, and helping them understand their problems.

He said this system is working splendidly but the number to be accommodated here is infinitesimal. He also noted that referrals have been made to clergymen, to the Red Cross, the Social Security Administration, to the Veterans Administration and to the Heart Association.

He said these agencies have all worked diligently and patiently with some of the worst cases, and great progress is being shown.

Urges Support

The problem is a community and statewide problem, he noted, and urged support of all good citizens in any program which will provide adequate care and rehabilitation of these citizens.

The 32 cases most frequently listed 18 months or so ago, have been reduced to nine. Only a couple of them are considered "mean or troublesome."

Mr. Weatherholt said he feels the church and church groups must face the fact that when young people grow out of scouting, as many leave when they become 16 or over, it is up to the church and school and the home, to arouse the interests of these people for a few more years. They must have no excuse to frequent beer halls and saloons.

In summary, he declared, much wholesome education is needed in school, church and home. The
